DOMESTIC NEWS.

A Southern Town Totally Destroyed by Flood.

SIXTY-FIVE PERSONS PERISH.

The New York Campaign—Hewitt Will Probably Decline to Run—A Race Tragedy in the South—The Chicago Strike.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Chief Operator West, of the Western Union telegraph company, has received the following message from the operator at Orange: The town of Sabine Pass was totally destroyed by water of the Sabine river last night. There are known to be sixty-five lives lost. Last night, during the overflow, the hotel, with fifteen or twenty people in it, was swept out into the bay, and every one of the inmates drowned. The captain of a schooner from there to-day says not a house is left in the whole country, and every living thing there was drowned. A party of men came from Beaumont this evening on the train, with the intention of joining the people of Orange and going down to Sabine Pass with a relief boat.

NOTE.—The wires have been down all day on both sides of Orange. Sabine Pass is twelve miles below Beaumont, on the Sabine river.

THE WEATHER AT GALVESTON.

GALVESTON, Oct. 13.—Last night's furious gale subsided towards morning, and to-day it is clear. The damage to shipping and railroad property is slight, and beyond the wetting of a couple of barges laden with cotton on the gulf side of the city no serious damage is reported.

THE NEW YORK MAYORALTY.

Hewitt Will Probably Decline—Remarks by Henry George.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—It seems probable that Abram S. Hewitt will accept Tammany Hall's nomination for mayor. In case he does the county democracy will endorse the nomination and the democrats of New York will for the first time in six years present a united front. Bob Ingersoll has announced himself in favor of the election of Henry George. He advises the republicans to endorse and vote for the laborers' candidate. It does not seem at all probable, however, that his advice will be heeded.

HEWITT WILL NOT RUN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A committee appointed by the Tammany hall county convention waited upon Congressman Hewitt this afternoon. Hewitt invited them into his private office, and a long discussion and conference was held. When it was ended the committee came out with downcast faces, and hurried away. It is generally believed that Hewitt has declined the nomination for mayor.

REMARKS BY GEORGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Henry George is beginning to introduce his theoretical ideas into his campaign speeches. At a meeting held last night he said: "I want you to show the political managers that the workingmen have a right to be heard. Right here in New York, where you are now placed, you have no rights but to work and toil, and pay what you earn for the privilege of living. Why have you not rights? Because you have not asserted them. These horse cars that run along your streets should be free as air; just as free as the elevator that carries you into the upper stories of tall buildings. It is your privilege to have cars run you out to the unoccupied land that lies all about you, and held by millionaires for a rise. We fought to blot out one form of slavery, but another, more vicious, and which is fast eating at the vitals of the republic, has taken its place. The slave owner fed his slaves. How many in hearing of my voice have sufficient food to appease their hunger? How many in a radius of half a mile know where they are to sleep to-night? How many know where they are to get their breakfast? You are in industrial slavery. What are you to do about it? Elect me mayor and I will endeavor to put in operation reform. You call this your country, yet you cannot call one square inch of it your own."

A RACE TRAGEDY.

One Student Killed and Two Wounded by Negroes in North Carolina.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Herald's Durham, N. C., special: A lamentable affray between students of the North Carolina state university and negroes took place on Chapel hill. It resulted in the death of one student and the wounding of two others. For some time past a bitter feeling has existed between students, especially the student who was killed, Jacob A. Freeze, and a negro who is supposed to have shot him, Pat Brewer, and from time to time they had quarreled. On Saturday evening they had a fight, when the negroes outnumbered the students, and they retreated and made their way to the university.

The negroes retired to their usual rendezvous, the house of a negro named Barber, where they held high carnival far into the night. At a late hour two students who had spent the evening in town, while passing Barber's house were cursed and stoned by some of the gang. The young men hastened to the university, and, rousing up Freeze and four others, easily induced them to give assistance in seeking redress.

On reaching the house they tried to force their way in, at the same time calling on the negroes to come out and give them satisfaction. The reply was a volley from a second-story window. The fire was returned by the students, but so far as learned none of the negroes were injured. Freeze was instantly killed, a bullet passing through his heart, and two students were wounded.

A party, well mounted and well armed, has gone in pursuit of the ringleaders of the negroes, who fled after the murder, and should any one of the fugitives be captured he will undoubtedly be lynched. Seven negroes have been arrested, and fears are expressed that they will be lynched by the students.

THE CHICAGO STRIKE.

No Change in the Situation at Armour's Packing House—Bold Talk.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Mr. Barry, of the arbitration committee, appointed by the Knights of Labor to adjust the trouble in the stock yards, said to-day that he had hopes of making a settlement in the morning and would at any rate know before noon what the prospects of compromising the difficulties were. He was surprised at the action of the packers at their meeting yesterday, and said that when he saw them yesterday forenoon they had said nothing to him about any determination to hold out for ten hours, but said they rather led him to believe that a compromise might be arranged.

The quiet that has attended this great strike is the wonder of everyone who comes to the yards and has made thousands of friends for the Knights, to whose efforts the admirable order is due.

The importation of men by Armour & Co. is making the strikers restive and the task of controlling the younger element is becoming difficult. Everything this morning was the same as it was yesterday. Armour's beef butchers still remained at work by order of the Knights, although they are restive under the fact that the cars are loaded by clerks and outsiders. The Pinkerton men have completed their culinary apparatus and will live entirely on the supply of meat from the packing house. They cannot buy anything outside, except at the Transit house. There is a rigid boycott against them.

BOLD TALK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Delegate Barry was seen by a Daily News reporter at noon to-day and said: "The men have their minds set on the eight hour rule, and will agree to nothing else. We made a proposition this morning to the packers that the eight hour men will agree to work all over time necessary. This will be practical recognition of the eight hour system, and will be accepted by the men. The packers submitted a proposition that the men be paid by the hour. This will not be accepted. I have proposed a meeting with the packers at the board of trade this afternoon, and should they accept the proposition the matter will be settled ultimately. Should they not meet me I will take other means to effect a settlement, for this thing must be fixed quickly, as it is all nonsense for Armour to suppose that his beef butchers will work under the circumstances by which they are now surrounded. If I find that things are as I sometimes suspect they are, and that the packers are playing a waiting game, I shall take more energetic measures at once, and on my return to Richmond shall tell the Knights there that Armour's beef is not as good as it used to be, and we will see how the opinions of two millions of men throughout the country will affect trade."

THE K. OF L.

The Election Results in the Re-Election of Master Workman Powderly.

RICHMOND, Oct. 13.—Delegates were early afoot this morning and unusually prompt in their attendance at Armory hall. The most important work of the convention was begun yesterday when the general master workman declared that amendments to the constitution were in order and was sustained in his decision by the assembly, despite the objection of a few. This work of amending the constitution was resumed this morning and prosecuted throughout the session.

The proposed amendment to the constitution, extending to two years the terms of all general officers, excepting those of members of the co-operative board, was taken up and adopted. The terms of members of the co-operative board remain as at present.

When that matter had been disposed of the regular order of business was suspended and the general assembly proceeded to the election of general officers. General Master Workman Powderly and General Worthy Foreman Griffiths were re-elected to the offices they have already held for seven consecutive terms.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the afternoon session it was decided to divide the office of general secretary and treasurer. Charles H. Litchman, of Marblehead, Mass., was placed in nomination for the office of secretary by James Campbell, of Pittsburg. The nomination was seconded by Tom O'Reilly, of New York. The only candidate placed in nomination in opposition was Joseph Buchanan, of Denver, Colorado. Litchman was elected by more than 180 majority.

Frederick Turner, present general secretary and treasurer, was nominated for general treasurer. Turner was elected by more than 200 majority.

Balloting for members of the executive board then began. The following names were placed in nomination: John W. Hayes, of New Jersey, Thos. J. Barry, of Michigan, H. Bailey, of Ohio, T. B. McGuire, of New York, Tom O'Reilly, of New York, Joseph Buchanan, of Colorado, Wm. H. Mullen, of Richmond, Ira B. Aylsworth, of Baltimore, Md., John Howe, of Massachusetts. An informal ballot was taken, in which Mr. Hayes led in the number of votes polled, with Barry second. Some delegates wanted to continue voting, but a motion to adjourn until to-morrow was put and carried.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

THE "BOODLE" ALDERMEN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Aldermen O'Neill and Reilly slept last night at police headquarters. This morning they were taken to the district attorney's office. At noon to-day all the "boodle" aldermen who are not known to have "skipped" have either been taken into custody or surrendered themselves, except Wendell and Finck. No apprehension is felt for these two, it being said they would shortly be on hand.

In department one of the general sessions court to-day the case of Henry L. Pierson was closed, and as he did not respond, his bonds were declared forfeited.

On application of the district attorney the bail of alderman Sayles was also declared forfeited. Pearson gave bonds in $40,000 this afternoon.

Ex-alderman Wendel came to the district attorney's office, accompanied by his bondsman, Bernard Kursah, a jeweler. The alderman felt greatly elated at having been so lucky as to keep out of the clutches of the police last night, and apologized to the detectives for the trouble he had given in searching for him. He said he slept in an immigrant sleeping house in Greenwich street last night.

Ex-alderman Finch also called at the district attorney's office to arrange for increased bail.

Alderman Shields, who was released on temporary bail last night in the central police office, paid a visit to the district attorney's office, remaining only until his bonds were perfected and made permanent.

PUNISHING A DISHONEST LAWYER.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—An order was issued to-day by the supreme bench of this city, calling upon I. Parker Veazey to show cause why he should not be disbarred from practicing law in this state. Veazey is a prominent lawyer, who was appointed postmaster by President Cleveland. He resigned, and shortly after made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, with large liabilities and small assets. The order from the court was issued on proof being produced of his having misappropriated trust funds to the amount of $28,000, and he will probably be disbarred. He was removed from the trusteeship in which his defalcation was discovered.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—The remains of a woman were found in an oak box at the Allegheny depot, near the end of Union bridge, this morning. The lid of the box was broken off by the jar the box received when it fell, and the contents had rolled out. The body was nude and in an advanced stage of decomposition. On the box were labels of the Pacific steamship company and the New York office of Adams's express company. The authorities are inclined to think the body was shipped from Europe, but no definite information has been learned in regard to it.

RAILROAD NOTES.

RAILROAD TIME CONVENTION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The general railroad time convention met at the hotel Brunswick to-day. There were 125 managers and general managers of railroads throughout the United States and Canada present. The association embraces 155 roads, operating over 125,000 miles of railroad. In October, 1884, the association met in Philadelphia, and a committee was appointed to draft rules which should regulate the time and management of trains, and during the two years which have elapsed the committee have been prosecuting their arduous task. To-day the association met for the purpose of discussing these rules, which number twenty-five, covering every point relating to time and management of trains, and if no objection is made to them the convention will adopt them and sign an agreement to put them in effect the 15th of November.

A POLITICAL OUTRAGE

Mayor Bartlett Charged with a Heinous Offense.

HE TOOK MONEY FROM CHINESE.

His Political Opponents Stand Aghast at the Terrible Discovery—They Frankly Admit That They Cannot Support Him Now.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The exposure made and developed to-day that Mayor Bartlett, of this city, and who is the democratic nominee for governor of this state, has for many years past been renting one of his houses in Greenwich street to a Chinaman, for use as a Chinese laundry, has produced intense consternation among all classes of people. That Mayor Bartlett, who aspires to be governor of the state of California, and who has constantly passed as a Chinese hater; who has at all times and under all circumstances loudly proclaimed that he was opposed to the race as laborers in this state, should be discovered and convicted as one secretly supporting them, and utilizing them to his individual profit, passes alike the comprehension of democrats and republicans. All seemed stunned by the blow, and yet the fact is brought out so plain and clear that there is no denying it.

The facts are simply these: For a long time past he has rented a building on Greenwich street, which stands on the assessment roll as worth $600, to Chinese for $22 a month. The Chinaman to whom he rented is named Yuen. Last January, when Bartlett realized that he was likely to become the nominee for governor on the democratic ticket, he issued an order that Yuen be turned out and the building closed up. Prior to doing this he had twice increased the Chinaman's rent, but as he clearly understood that it would be inconsistent for a nominee for the governorship to rent houses to a Chinaman, even if he did get a good rent, he told the Chinaman he would have to "go." He thought it better to lose $22 a month for a few months than to allow that to wreck his prospects for the governorship and $6000 a year.

THE CHINAMAN INTERVIEWED.

The Chinaman, when seen on the subject and asked why Mayor Bartlett had turned him out, after having been his tenant for so many years, replied: "Mayor Bartlett he no likee China boy at election time, but allee lightee after a while."

The Chinaman has the assurance that when the election is over he will go back to his washhouse and again become the good tenant of Mayor Bartlett.

In addition to the facts already stated it may be said that a white woman who lived next to the property rented by the mayor to Chinese desired to purchase the place, in order to effect the removal of the obnoxious Chinese. She was informed that she could have it for $2700 and not a cent less, notwithstanding that he had taken care to have himself assessed on this same property for $690.

In connection with this fact several leading members of various labor and anti-Chinese organizations were interviewed to-day.

"I was never more surprised in my life than I was when I heard that Mayor Bartlett was landlord of Chinese tenants. Why, it took my breath away," said C. F. McGlashan, president of the anti-Chinese non-partisan association. "My surprise would not have been so great had it not been a well known fact that the mayor has been just about as outspoken in his condemnation of the Chinese as I have, and I can not understand how he could occupy these two positions. I consider this exposure damaging against the mayor in his campaign, for there is not an honest voter in the city, member of the anti-Chinese club, or any one who has helped to promote the anti-Chinese movement, that can or will vote for him. I will be —— if I will vote for a man who harbors and deals with Chinese, and I know there are thousands of others in the state who are in the same position. This is a serious matter and one that demands some kind of explanation from Mayor Bartlett. I am very anxious to know what his reply will be."

Frank Roney, president of the federated trades, said: "Of course the general public has been ignorant of the fact that Mayor Bartlett has been renting his property to Chinese. They have supposed that the mayor was honest and sincere in his declared position against Chinese, but this shows that he was not. It is something that will strike laboring men very forcibly, and I don't think there is one of them that can support him after knowing the true situation. It would be the proper thing for every anti-Chinese club in the city and state to pass resolutions of condemnation of Mayor Bartlett's course."

THE K. OF L.

H. C. Kinne, master workman of the Knights of Labor of this district, a staunch democrat, was very outspoken when asked, as representative of the Knights of Labor, how the members of that organization would act regarding Mayor Bartlett's pro-Chinese course.

"If it is true, as published, that Mayor Bartlett is harboring and dealing with Chinese," said he, "and I have no reason to doubt it, the Knights of Labor will have no other course but to repudiate him. They cannot support a man who stands in that position."

"There is no politics in our association," said president Shepherd, of the white cooks' and waiters' union; "but if Mayor Bartlett does not disprove the allegations made against him, democratic white cooks and waiters will sour on him at once. They won't stand a candidate who makes his money off Chinese labor, and if he fails to clear himself they will vote to a man for Swift. We shall watch with interest Mayor Bartlett's course in this matter."

Among democrats there is mixed feeling in regard to the exposure of Mayor Bartlett as a Chinese washhouse owner. Some of them look upon the matter as a campaign story, to which little attention will be paid. Others regard the matter very seriously, and say that if the statement is true it will injure Bartlett very much with citizens who are thoroughly sincere on the anti-Chinese question. It is generally admitted, when men seriously talk of the matter, that the mayor will lose many votes among the working people through his ownership of a Chinese washhouse.

CALIFORNIA.

A BRAVE DEED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—A remarkable instance of presence of mind and intrepidity occurred yesterday on a local train from here to Berkeley, on the other side of the bay. The 4:20 o'clock train from Berkeley happened to miss a switch at Shell Mound, where it passes the 4 o'clock train from San Francisco, and the two trains sped directly toward each other. The engineer of the train from San Francisco saw that a collision was inevitable, and in order to protect the passengers from injury he ordered down brakes, disconnected his engine from the train and shot the engine away in advance of the cars, so as to receive the force of the shock on it. The engineer of the Berkeley train, in the meantime, did all he could to check his engine, and succeeded in so reducing the speed that when the collision came it was comparatively slight, and did but a few hundred dollars' worth of damage. Many of the passengers were considerably frightened, but no one was hurt.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

General Agent Stern, of the Canadian Pacific, says transcontinental business of his line continues good. Freights to and from this city via Port Moody are fairly active, and the road has been traveled by a great many tourists and others from this city. Speaking of the passenger war between American lines and the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Stern said he was not forcing the fight, but was simply meeting rates made by other transcontinental roads out of this city. Since the Canadian line opened war not long ago with a $75 rate to New York and other roads cut the rate, it has ceased to take further the initiative in the fight, not caring to demoralize rates.

SUIT TO RECOVER MONEY.

Wm. and Jacob Scholle and others, proprietors of the Union warehouse, have brought suit against Edward H. Cawley and Patrick McCoy to recover $11,250, the value of 125,000 jute bags which Cawley, while employed in the warehouse, appropriated in 1882-3. Cawley was prosecuted in the criminal courts for theft, but was acquitted, as more than three years had elapsed since the commission of the crime.

THE CALIFORNIA & OREGON.

Notwithstanding many assertions as to a change of route on the California & Oregon, that road will be pushed as rapidly as possible through Northern California, to connect with the Oregon & California at Ashland. The road which it is contemplated to build into Eastern Oregon, will be a branch of the California & Oregon, and will be undertaken after the main line is completed. No authoritative surveys have yet been made of the country, and a Southern Pacific agent leaves at the end of the week to report upon the feasibility of the proposed road.

PRACTICALLY A NEW ROUTE.

Attention has been called to the fact that when the California & Oregon has been extended north through Eastern Oregon, as now proposed, there will practically be a new overland line. The road is to eventually connect with the Northern Pacific, which means the making of a traffic arrangement between that line and the Southern Pacific company, by which freight can be shipped to Montana, Dakota and Minnesota points from this city in much less time than is now possible.

FUNERAL OF SAMUEL LYON.

Samuel E. Lyon, a pioneer merchant of Portland, Oregon, who died here Monday, was buried this afternoon from his residence, corner Van Ness avenue and Pine streets. Over a quarter of a century ago he located in Portland, and by active business and real estate investments became wealthy. Three years ago he removed with his family to this city. A widow, three sons and two daughters survive him.

THE CODFISH CATCH.

The complete catch of codfish by the fleet from this city this year amounts to 1,232,000 fish, averaging about three pounds each, or an aggregate of 1847 tons. This is the smallest catch for five years. There were caught among the Choumagin islands 566,000, Behring sea 239,000, and Okhotsk sea 427,000.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

A CHILD RUN OVER.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 13.—Late last evening a distressing accident occurred to a 6-year-old boy of Mayor Randolph Smith. The lad had been permitted to ride, standing, on a wood rack while the team was in motion, by a careless driver. Losing his balance, the boy fell under one of the hind wheels, which passed over the chest diagonally from left to right, downward, so crushing the child's body as to cause blood to flow freely from the mouth for some time. No bones were broken. During the night the child got easier and is now out of danger.

RIVER AND HARBOR WORK.

The following communication from Capt. Powell about work on our rivers and harbors was made recently to the office of the chief of engineers at Washington, and by that office is given out for information here:

UNITED STATES ENGINEER'S OFFICE, PORTLAND, OR., Sept. 4, 1886.

Jetty operations at the mouth of Coquille river are to be conducted this fall, and are, in fact, about commenced. Jetty operations at the mouth of the Columbia river and at the entrance of Yaquina bay are not to be conducted this fall. These decisions are according to the approved projects for applying the late appropriations pertaining thereto.

Directions about the Coos bay work have not been received; my recommendation was to limit operations for this fall and winter to certain quarry work and getting out piles from United States land for a new jetty tramway. Such tramway is necessary; building it is a matter of several weeks, and would throw the jetty work into the season of storms and short days, and subject the tramway, for a short period of work, to damage by drift and seas; whereas its construction next spring would give a full season's use without exposure to such damage. The appropriation is about 20 per cent. of the estimate; and the method of work for its judicious application is a matter of careful consideration. According to my understanding of the views of the supervising engineer, a difference of opinion as to the conduct of the Coos bay work exists between him and me. He has raised a question about not extending the jetty and has put the matter in the way of a decision. This would probably postpone jetty work, if good reasons otherwise did not.

Under existing unavoidable circumstances the stone for the Columbia river jetty must be unloaded from barges at the Fort Stevens wharf, where, during late fall and winter, the cost and time of stone delivery are considerably more than during spring and summer. Moreover, the face of this wharf, the only available one, is bare at low tide, from a sand fill to a hight of about five feet. One year ago the depth of water there was fifteen feet at low tide. For present jetty work a wharf extension is necessary, which, if made, would shoal again by next spring. It would be almost a waste of money to go on with the jetty before spring. The main operations for this season now under way consist of developing quarry sites already explored, and which can be reached by land, and if a sure stone supply is found, of building a railroad to the jetty.

The circumstances at Yaquina bay are partly similar, but not in so great a degree as at Coos bay and the mouth of the Columbia. Besides there is a land difficulty at Yaquina bay, which I am satisfied would prevent jetty work this season, unless the government submitted to an extortionate price for certain land. The principal operations intended before spring are making a survey, tidal measurements and borings for use in considering an extension of the present project to give a greater channel depth than now contemplated.

My projects for applying the appropriations on three of the works named above and on another work, where I felt tolerably sure of the amounts appropriated were forwarded upon newspaper information of the enactment of the River and Harbor bill, and thirteen days in advance of the receipt of official notice calling for these projects. Immediately upon receipt of notice steps were taken to carry out the projects.

CHAS. F. POWELL,
Captain of Engineers.

Kate Field and Woman Suffrage.

Miss Kate Field, in an interview published in the Chicago News, replying to a question respecting her views on woman suffrage, said: "Woman suffrage is not my forte. I do not believe in it. Women themselves do not want it, or they would have it. I believe suffrage should be based upon moral, intellectual and property qualifications. It should be esteemed a reward, not a right. Universal suffrage must lead to a dishonest republic, and the result of such dishonesty is demagogism. The women of to-day want universal suffrage as prohibition is wanted, and you know how practical the prohibitory laws are that have been enacted. I have just been through Iowa, and can realize the disgraceful result of the so-called prohibition in that state. It makes sneaks and hypocrites of otherwise honest people, and grog shops of the drugstores. There has been more and poorer liquor sold in Iowa since the passage of the prohibitory laws than before."

War Considered Necessary to Settle the Eastern Question.

RUSSIA ON THE AGGRESSIVE.

A Famous Nihilist Escapes from Siberia—Germans Arming with Repeating Rifles—Gonzales Assassinated.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Opinion here on the war prospects in Bulgaria may be gathered by the following extracts from leading journals. The Times says: "There is still a possibility of averting resort to force."

The Standard says: "Throughout the continent the air smells of gunpowder. An outbreak of hostilities is a probable contingency."

The Daily News says: "It is possible that a peaceful solution of the difficulty may be found."

The Pall Mall Gazette publishes to-day a secret memorandum addressed to the admiralty by Lord Charles Beresford, junior naval lord, in which he says he feels bound to put on record a protest against the entire unreadiness of England for war. He dwells at great length on the lack of armament, defenses and personnel, and declares that there is at headquarters absolutely no plan of operation in case of an outbreak of hostilities. Unless a man of famous energy and genius should be created by need, England would be face to face with an irreparable calamity."

RUSSIA MEANS AGGRESSION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Thomas Power O'Connor cables from London to the Star: In Russian circles, the czar's alleged declarations to the contrary notwithstanding, the only practical solution of the Balkan problem spoken of is temporary occupation of the Bulgarian strongholds and chief centers of population and commerce before snow flies. The action of Austria is uncertain. An influential party of men favor a friendly agreement between Austria and Russia for a simultaneous march southward, with Salonica on one side and Constantinople on the other. England assuredly will not lift a finger against Russia without an alliance with one of the great powers outside of Turkey. Yet there is not a single sign worthy of notice of success in the proposed entente cordiale between England and Austria against Russia. On the other hand there are many indications of a secret understanding between Austria and Russia, through Germany, to partition the Ottoman empire in Europe between them.

LABOUCHERE ON THE EASTERN QUESTION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Labouchere cables from London: "Whether Bulgaria will be Austrian, Russian, Turkish or Bulgarian is a matter that no more concerns us than whether Sitting Bull or Swimming Frog is chief of some tribe of red Indians in the Rocky mountain region. We fail to realize this because of a craze which leads us to imagine that our mission is to keep an eye upon Russia. We may keep an eye upon her, but can fortunately do no more."

THE BULGARIAN ELECTIONS.

SOFIA, Oct. 13.—The elections in Bulgaria for members of the great sobranje have resulted in the return of 430 government candidates, twenty-six members of the Zankoff party and fifteen adherents of M. Karaveloff.

RUSSIA.

ESCAPE OF A FAMOUS NIHILIST.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Sun's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that he learns, despite official secrecy, that the police have received full confirmation from Siberia of the reported escape of Degaieff, alias Jablonski, the famous nihilist conspirator who planned and assisted in the murder of Lieut.-Col. Sudeikin, chief of police, and one of his staff, nearly three years ago. The police have traced Degaieff to Geneva, and have vainly tried to wheedle the Swiss government into extraditing him. The police are getting nervous over frequent escapes from Siberia this year. A few who have ventured to return to St. Petersburg have been recaptured and returned, but a majority have made their way to Geneva and London, and plotting against the government has been renewed with redoubled fervor. Since June at least twenty Siberian prisoners have escaped, including two cavalry officers and several students, some of them escaping by way of Cambodia. Precautions which are observed throughout Siberia are so stringent that the government is persuaded that the escapes could not have been effected without connivance with prison officials. A special commission has been sent into Siberia to inquire into their causes, and to establish an entirely new system of prison government. Refugees report that the Siberian prisons and mines are crowded with exiles. Disease is rampant, and scurvy is especially severe. The mortality, they say, is frightful.

ARMING WITH REPEATING RIFLES.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Germany has decided to supply her whole army with repeating rifles. Four corps stationed on the western frontier of the empire are already equipped with improved arms. It is rumored that all government manufactories and arsenals are to be run continuously day and night, on the work of converting Mauser rifles, the weapon at present in use by the army, into repeating rifles holding ten cartridges each.

TOLEDO NOTES.

TOLEDO, W. T., Oct. 12.

Rains are falling here now and more is needed. Considerable plowing has been done and some seeding, but the prairie land is yet very dry.

The item in THE OREGONIAN some weeks ago inviting this colony to Toledo has brought to the editor of the Pilot inquiries from several Western and Southern states regarding Lewis county, which is evidence that THE OREGONIAN'S readers are scattered over a large field.

J. Kellogg & Co. have been given a contract on the improvement of the Cowlitz river and are hard at work, blasting and pulling out snags. They have also a crew of men building wing dams. The contract was given so late, however, that they will not be able to do half of the needed work.

There has been a good yield of all kinds of fruit in this locality this season, and the apple crop now being harvested is no exception. Moreover, none of the pests infecting California and Oregon orchards are known here, excepting, perhaps, the woolly aphis, of which a few are seen. There are but few orchards in this locality, but those that are given half a chance are full of fine fruit.

The second installment of the late Missouri colony, of which so much has been said, arrived here to-day and more will follow soon. Two of those here will put up dwelling houses immediately, and others will do the same during the winter. The new comers seem to be intelligent and wide-awake and know a good thing when they see it. They say that the Cowlitz valley fully bears out every statement made to them regarding it.

Toledo has two saloons, each paying $300 a year into the school fund. The town is quiet, orderly, and no constable or marshal is needed. The Chehalis saloons had their licenses taken from them by local option, yet whisky is plenty and convenient, and rowdyism not uncommon; $600 per year more taken from the school fund; there is no money in the city treasury to pay a town marshal, and no arrests are made. All the same, Chehalis saloons get their share of the Toledo license money. Let the prohibitionists study the situation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 —Further advices have been received by the state department to day touching the action of the Canadian authorities in hauling down the American flag on the schooner Marion Grimes The facts, as officially stated, are that the announcing of the birthday of the captain of the Grimes occurred while his vessel was in the custody of a Canadian officer, and he celebrated that event by hoisting the American flag over his vessel The Canadian customs officers have confessed that a mistake was made in summarily lowering colors and have expressed regret at the occurrence, and as the Grimes has been released no further notice is likely to be taken of the case by the department of state

MEETING OF WESTERN UNION STOCKHOLDERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 At a meeting of the Western Union Telegraph company's stockholders to-day Samuel Sloan presiding the following new directors were elected Austin Corbin Henry B. Hyden and John G Moore These gentlemen take the places of Harrison Durkee deceased, Frank Work and Hugh J Jewett

President Norvin Green presented his annual report The bonded debt at the close of the year was $6 8[?] 20[?] The business of the year was Revenues $1[?] 2[?]8,6[?]8 expenses, $12,78[?] 783 profits, $3 [?]49,8[?] surplus July 1, 1885, $4,3[?] 504, from which profits and surplus deduct $[?],84,025 for dividends and interest charges, and a surplus on June 30 of this year of $4 50[?] 8[?]3 remains

The report says Whilst the volume of business traffic has continued to increase, tables show a material reduction in revenues, principally in cable, gold and stock and commercial news earnings. Notwithstanding continued reductions in rates the earnings from the land lines service have been well maintained, the falling off in earnings from messages transmitted over the land lines being less than the increase from wire rentals The outlook for the ensuing year is better In the face of active and extended competition and further reduced rates, earnings are well maintained Early moving of the grain crop made an active business in July and August, and weekly returns from test offices showed a large increase. It has been demonstrated that with two or more competitors reaching all the principal commercial centers east of the Rocky mountains, and with some of the rates cut below the cost of the service, the company still maintains an earning capacity equal to more than 4 per cent. on its capital stock above fixed charges."

ADDRESS OF THE ANTI SALOON REPUBLICANS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Following are the principal points in the address to the republican party issued by the national committee of anti saloon republicans appointed at the conference held in Chicago September 16. After dwelling upon the magnitude which the liquor traffic has attained in America, and resulting evils, the address emphasizes the disastrous effect on the working classes, refers to crimes accruing from the operation of prohibition laws and says "This widespread violation of one set of wholesome laws breeds general contempt for all law, and opens a hospital door to those modern allies of the saloon system, communism and anarchy. The saloon power in the United States uses a corruption fund to carry elections by the purchase of votes, to obstruct the course of justice by tampering with juries, and to punish with defeat public servants who incur its displeasure." The address declares that the saloon ought to be put out of existence, and that until destroyed the saloon should be crippled by every restraint and disability which local public sentiment will enforce, and made to reimburse as much as possible of the public loss it causes. The address believes this policy the proper one to pursue. The address insists that the republican party is called to this work. By attacking great wrongs consecutively it has destroyed them in detail, and at each success has prepared the people for another step, and the hour has struck for the next advance

THE PANAMA CANAL COMPANY FLEECED

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 —According to Senor Santiago Torrico, of the Peruvian navy, the business of the Panama canal company is conducted in much the same manner as was the New York board of aldermen in 1884 "Boodle" is what every employe looks for and what he generally gets,"—so says Senor Torrico "and personal gain is the ruling motive of every man, no matter how low his position, who is in the employ of the company at Panama." Senor Torrico further says "Unless a different set of men take hold of the works, the Panama canal will never be completed. The manner in which these gentlemen live is simply princely Gorgeously furnished houses, horses, carriages and palace cars are what are considered to be essentially necessary to the company's chiefs, in order that they may carry on the work to a successful close, and the company's money pays the bills. One man who dealt in furniture, etc., made in two years half a million dollars out of the job, and that is a sample of the corruption existing in the ranks"

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 —The triennial session of the national Congregational church met to day at the Union Park Congregational church There were between 400 and 500 delegates present. AMERICAN ACADEMY OF MEDICINE

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13 —The American academy of medicine finished up its business to-day and adjourned shortly after noon, to meet in Washington, D C, Friday and Saturday preceding the international medical congress, which convenes in that city September 1, 1877

At the morning session officers were elected The following papers were then read, after which the convention adjourned "Duties of physicians to each other,' by Dr Traill Green 'Christian education for medicine," by Dr A Kemper, Cincinnati "Is modern wound treatment scientific?" by Dr Henry O'Marcy Boston 'Treatment and management of tubercular spondylitis," by Dr Virgil P Gibney, of New York "Physical culture in Amherst college,' by Dr Nathan Allen, Lowell, Mass "What should physicians advise as to education of young women, by Dr George F Stubbs, of Philadelphia In his paper on "Physical culture in Amherst" Dr Allen deprecated over work, whether in physical or mental culture but maintained that the best physical health could be better maintained by gymnastics than by special feats in [illegible] ball playing, etc —which only developed special muscles [illegible] of women corsets, tight [?] shoes and trashy novels received due attention and condemnation.

THE EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 —At the Episcopal conference to-day there was an animated discussion on a motion to send congratulations to the Congregational church After substitution of "brethren for church," the resolution was adopted

The house met with closed doors after recess and approved the testimonials of Rev Dr Mahlon N Gilbert, assistant bishop-elect of Minnesota and assented to his consecration

Upon reopening the doors the debate was resumed on the proposed change of church name G C Shattuck, of Massachusetts, and Rev Dr Hunckle, of Virginia, argued for preservation of the old name. They were reinforced by Wilmer, of Maryland, Rev Drs McVicker, of Pennsylvania, Beardsley, of Connecticut, and Goodwin, of Pennsylvania. The discussion was still in progress when the adjournment hour arrived

FOURTH INDIAN CONFERENCE.

LAKE MOHONK, Oct. 13 —The fourth Indian conference convened here this morning Gen Clinton B Fisk, president of the board of Indian commissioners, was in the chair A committee to arrange the general business of the conference was appointed. The session was devoted to discussion of means of civilizing the Indians

IRELAND.

A PREACHER BECOMES INSANE.

DUBLIN, Oct. 13 —The Mail says "Rev Augustus Stopford Brooke, the eminent Unitarian preacher, has become insane and has been confined in an insane asylum "

Their Reasonable Request.
New York Herald.

The socialists say they are not anarchists Their only demand is that the real estate which our citizens have acquired shall be divided pro rata among the people, with possibly a little favoritism toward the socialists themselves because they first suggested the reform So reasonable a request should be granted without delay

Subjugated Democracy.
New York Sun (Dem)

The election in New York in 1885 indicated that the triumph had been genuine, but this does not appear to have been the case in New England for no democrat can look upon the nomination of Mr Andrew without being forced to the conclusion that the democracy has been whipped in Massachusetts

THE MECHANICS' FAIR.

Steady Increase Nightly in the Number of Visitors.

Large Attendance from the Interior—Complete List of Woman's Hand work Exhibit—Fair Notes.

Large crowds at the pavilion both afternoon and evening was the rule for yesterday Over 5000 visitors passed the doors last night. The number of visitors from the country is greater than ever before. On Tuesday evening more coupons were presented at the pavilion than has ever been known during the past eight years on any one night. These coupons were attached to tickets bought over the Oregon & California railroad, and show the great number of visitors from the interior The Mechanics' fair for 1886 is unquestionably a success The Walla Walla band have won their way to the good will of Portland people, and are nightly encored for their efforts The music for to-night will be as follows

NOTES

The first knitting machine ever exhibited in Oregon will be manipulated this evening by a young lady of Eugene City, at the woolen exhibit of Wm Skelton & Son

The attention of farmers and visitors from the interior generally is called to the exhibit of Russell & Co at the west end of the machinery [illegible] Their [illegible] strong saw [illegible] improved Massillon thresher and [illegible] Russell traction engine which is pronounced by dealers and manufacturers to be the finest, most perfect, and at the same time the handsomest engine ever exhibited in Portland.

In the etchings corner of the art gallery five little gems are exhibited by Mr Fisher, the most pretentious of which is the "Great Oak of Lousanne," which is an "artist's proof" by Alexis Forel. This is beautiful work, the artist evidently making it a labor of love, Lousanne being his birthplace. The rugged, gnarled old trunk and the broad spreading branches are clothed with a singular softness which possesses an indescribable charm The dantiest little thing, however, and one that must warm the heart of an angler, is the little etching, "A Burgundy Trout Stream" The portion of the stream the artist has sketched is a deep, quiet, pool, with drooping branches on either bank, which almost meet overhead, such an one as is always found below a larger riffle on any mountain stream. The peculiar softness of all etchings, seems in this case to have thrown an Indian summer haze over the whole scene, and vividly brings to mind a late September day in the mountains with rod and reel.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

ARTHUR KOHN

Too busy to spare his men telling the people at the fair whom the wax figures represent, Mr Kohn is obliged to let the "figures" take care of themselves at his stand in the fair Being a wide-awake man, he simply goes into the fair to show that he is no moss-back, and is willing to expend, like all enterprising men usually do, not a thousand dollars, but a liberal sum in helping to make the fair a success "Any sacrifice to that end," he says, "and always count me in when you are doing anything to further Portland's interests" Speaking of figures reminds us that he has made some remarkable "cuts" in prices He knows how to buy, and therefore knows how to sell at the bottom of the list The tailoring department is kept busy, and thorough satisfaction is given.

THE SALEM FLOURING MILLS.

Standing in pyramid form, the first display that meets the eye in the agricultural department is that of the Salem Flouring Mills. The display is surmounted by a sheaf of white winter wheat, bordered by sprays of cedar, together denoting the color and substantial qualities of the patent roller flour manufactured at the company's mills This flour is now universally used in the families on the northwest coast. No better endorsement can be given than this fact. Your grocer can supply you should you not have it in your flour bin Mr George Shiel the agent, has his office at Corbitt & Macleay's, to whom orders for any quantity can be addressed Remember to note the display as you pass through the department of agriculture

STAVER & WALKER

Are still to the front with their magnificent display of machinery and vehicles The crowd of people that attend their several exhibits is a fair indication of the interest taken in the same, and a fitting acknowledgment of its excellence Everybody owning a horse longs to become the possessor of one of the many fine vehicles they have displayed, and those that cannot afford the high priced ones are requested to call at their warerooms, 208 to 214 Front street, and examine their large stock of medium priced work, which combines strength and durability with excellence of style and finish, at a price within the reach of all

Any one wanting a buggy, carriage, spring wagon or cart can obtain the same by calling upon this firm or writing for their handsomely illustrated catalogue and price list, containing full description of vehicles, unequaled by any in this market in style and quality, while their prices are at all times reasonable.

The American fruit evaporator is a revelation to many farmers who have permitted their fruit to go to waste each year, when by converting it into the superior evaporated article turned out by this dryer, they could make more money than on any other farm product

The energy and enterprise manifested by this firm in the introduction of new and improved machinery has been of great benefit to this country as it enables the farmer to put his products on the market in the best shape and at the least cost, thereby adding largely to the wealth and general prosperity of the country. That their efforts are appreciated is attested by the liberal patronage bestowed upon them

THE HAMMOND TYPE WRITER

Is comparatively little known in this section, but those who have operated them are "dead in love with the little beauties. For simplicity, durability, speed, beauty, strength and perfect alignment the "Hammond" commends itself to those desiring a type-writer The operator at the fair makes no pretentious show, but with the one at his disposal he can satisfy the most fastidious that the machine is capable of doing all that is claimed for it. The price cuts no figure in the matter. What is wanted is the accomplishment of work in the manner asked for, and which the "Hammond" does in all respects. Mr J. K. Havely is the local agent, and can be addressed through box 44, city, or interviewed at the fair

KNOX & DORE

Are the only job printers in the fair, and do the programme daily in a neat manner, besides a variety of other work They are young men and energetic rustlers for work, which they usually get when they set about it. Everything has a beginning, and with these men time will show that much can be accomplished by dint of energy, attention to business and proper execution of work placed in the hands of this firm. They have all they can do, and as business grows the machinery and assistance will be correspondingly increased

ADJUSTABLE BEVEL.

This invention consists of an adjustable arrangement for cutting bevels in any form, and the machine is made so perfect that the edges are cut clean and perfect, and by graduation in any length or proportion The display is only a model, but the inventor, Mr T Walker, of East Park and Montgomery, can manipulate it with ease and satisfy at sight its utility and superiority over other machines intended to accomplish work of the character claimed for beveling machines

GARRISON'S

Last evening there was a perfect jam at the sewing machine department where Mrs Winne presides, assisted by Mr Garrison, Mr. W. S Word and Mrs Richards, representing the interests of the Domestic Sewing Machine, have placed a portion of the many specimens of work done on the popular "Domestic." The display is quite large and adds much to the section controlled by Mrs Winne A careful inspection of the beautiful work exhibited will repay the visitor, The gentlemen take an equal interest in it, so that it must be attractive

HERBERT BRADLEY & CO.,

Dealers in shoemakers' goods, introduced in their display yesterday a novelty in 'Train's lacing hook." The machine for operating the hooks in shoes being in operation in the stand. We quote the points claimed for it from a circular issued

It will never pull off hooks easily and never [illegible] It is made of steel and from its peculiar shape is very strong and never straightens [illegible] down, but keeps its place until the shoe is worn out The only hook suitable for [illegible] because they do not catch the clothing, [illegible] chafe clothing, and wear out strings like all other hooks. The japan will only wear off the high points, and, being steel, they will not grow conspicuous as they grow old, like other hooks.

[illegible] to feel easy on the foot, should be [illegible]

FINLESS AUTOMATIC CLOTHES LINE

This is a simple contrivance of wire made to firmly hold clothing while drying or for the exhibition of goods in store or window The use of pins is avoided, and the invention commends itself. It is at the west end main floor

DIXON BORGESON & CO

Have a number of their show cases on exhibition through various exhibitors using them to show goods Mr Lutke, the manager, was in hopes of entering one or more of the showiest cases for premiums but found it too late. Nevertheless the cases are there, and they are all home manufacture.

THE QUERK MOTOR

Is in use at Knox & Dore's at the fair and throughout the city. It is in operation at sewing machine establishments, in private families for the same object, and in windows to work displays

FRIEDLANDER'S

Unique clocks are still very attractive objects to visitors who "do" the gallery nightly

THE WATER HEATER

Near the Second street entrance is Swager & Ketchen's water heater, which is claimed to be superior to the present method of heating water The inventors are present to explain the superior advantages of this heater.

OREGON STEAM BAKERY,

What can be said of crackers has been asked? Well it may be said that a great deal can be written on the subject of crackers, but it will be deferred for the present. The Oregon steam bakery produces not only crackers, but bread, cakes and other daily commodities. The display at the fair includes many varieties of cakes, as well as crackers

WISDOM

Has stacked up another lot of "Robertine" simply to show that he can produce something really meritorious, and this is one of the preparations that will become very popular with the ladies The fair sex will be sure to look in at Wisdom's drug store when they require something for the complexion.

NOTES FROM ASTORIA.

The Outlook for the Proposed Railroad to Tillamook,

Where it will get its Traffic if Built—The Deep-sea Fishing Company's New Enterprise—Opposition Tug Boats.

ASTORIA, Oct. 11

There is a good prospect for the building of the Astoria & Tillamook railroad. A company was incorporated a few weeks since for that purpose and the incorporators have held three informal meetings. At the next meeting they will probably elect officers and prepare to open stock books. It is not a wildcat scheme, but based on sound business principles. The road will have three sources of revenue to depend on the coal business of the lower Nehalem transporting supplies for the jetty at Fort Stevens and the summer travel to and from Clatsop beach, to say nothing of the local business of the fine dairy country lying between the south shore of the Columbia river near its mouth, and Tillamook head It will cost between $100,000 and $110,000 to build and equip a narrow gauge line from Astoria to the Seaside House (Holladay's place), a distance of about twenty miles. This estimate includes a pile bridge a mile and one-third long below where the Lewis and Clarke and Young's rivers meet, which will require but one draw One of the promoters of the enterprise informs me that there will be no trouble in selling the bonds of the company as soon as the stockholders pay in 30 per cent. of the estimated cost of the road upon a final survey He was of the opinion, however, that $100,000 could be raised in Clatsop county, and that the road will be finished to the Seaside house free from debt.

If the road should be built, the principal revenue for the first few years is expected from the government for the transportation of stone for the jetty Thousands on thousands of tons will be needed, and it can be hauled to the jetty cheaper by rail than by water The stone thus far used has been transported from the quarries upon barges, to the wharf at Fort Stevens, and thence to the jetties. The new wharf, like the old one, is high and dry and cannot be reached at highest tides and another new wharf will be necessary before more stone can be landed. The construction of a wharf at Fort Stevens does exactly what is expected of the jetty, it builds out the spit, by piling up the sand around the piles Said one gentleman interested in the railroad "We will be able to deliver stone at the jetty at very little greater cost to the government than it now costs them to get the stone from the decks of barges to the place where it is needed" The company expect to quarry some stone in the hills back of Astoria, and if they get the government contract on the jetty, rock will probably be hauled to it from both termini of the road.

The line from the Seaside house to the coal fields of the lower Nehalem will be an after consideration That fine blacksmithing coal abounds is not a matter of conjecture. The vein is five feet and four inches thick and the supply promises to be something immense It will take about nine or ten miles of road to reach the mines, and the elevation is about 900 feet. The road will be expensive as compared with the level line along Clatsop plains, but the projectors of the road are of the opinion that the coal, being of such excellent quality, will immediately find a market at paying prices and in such quantities as to insure steady traffic the year round.

The telegraph line between Astoria and Cape Disappointment is still down, and pilots have to depend on the old way of learning the condition of the Columbia river bar They go out on a tug and look for themselves It is not so convenient as having the news telegraphed by a man who has nothing else to do except sit and watch the bar from his eminence, and the sooner the line is repaired the better the shipping interests will be pleased

The Deep Sea Fishing company are going to work this winter in a business-like manner, and propose to demonstrate whether there is enough demand in Portland and in tributary towns and cities for deep sea fish to support an enterprise which has invested $15,000. If such demand exists, the company will be permanent. Otherwise, otherwise They are building a two masted steam schooner 92 feet long, 22 feet beam and 9 feet depth, which will be finished the last of next month She will cost about $13,000, and will have a steam capstan for hauling in the gear Her steaming capacity will be about seven miles an hour

Hitherto efforts at deep-sea fishing have been confined close to shore, because the company has never been provided with a suitable vessel. With the new craft they will explore the coast well, and may go up as far as Cape Flattery for halibut They will be satisfied to sell a ton of fish a day, and they expect to find a market for that quantity in Portland Not that Portland herself will consume 2000 pounds of deep sea fish daily, but with the demand from interior cities as far south as Jacksonville and as far east as Helena and Butte they think they will be able to build up a steady trade, particularly during the months when Chinook salmon do not offer opposition

Astorians do not take kindly to the Pacific standard time. Astoria is the one city of the state without railway communication, and she would probably stick to the true time, which is some twenty minutes slower than the "standard," were it not that she would be at variance with the O R. & N. and the telegraph company, and would suffer from the confusion incident to too sets of "times." The time for the 120th meridian, however, will never do for one set of men who are an important factor in Astoria's commerce. The fishermen have no use for an arbitrary time which varies twenty minutes from the truth Every man, when he starts out toward the bar, wants to know exactly when the tide will change A mistake of five minutes—sometimes one minute—may cost his life. So, for the benefit of fishermen, Hansen, the leading jeweler here, always keeps Astoria true time Says he "Either do away with this 'standard' time, or else tell the man who makes the tide tables to make them fit the 'standard time

Astoria just now is getting a benefit from the canneries at Tillamook Bay and Gray's Harbor The run of salmon in both bays has been large and Astoria furnishes most of the supplies needed. Tillamook bay has had six steamers within two weeks The G J Brenham, General Miles and A B Fields, each having made two trips For the first time in years, there are indications of commercial and industrial life at Tillamook Bay Lebenweber & Co., who are the pioneers in the salmon packing business on the bay, and who made large investments there five years ago received their first returns this season Samuel Elmore's new cannery has done well, and Smith's sawmill at Hobsonville finds enough business to run nearly the year round. What the bay needs is a few energetic men who understand the [illegible] business and feel like making homes for themselves in a healthful, equable climate, to settle up a country cool in summer and not cold in winter, where there is lots of good government land producing rich pasturage the year round where severe storms are unknown, and where transportation by water to market is available whenever there is anything to ship

Foreign shipping is not likely to suffer outside of the Columbia river entrance this winter for lack of pilots or of tug boats Capt Flavel has the Astoria, the Pioneer and the Columbia, all active and vigilant, in the hands of experienced men. Lately the General Miles entered the field, carrying her own pilot, and in ten days secured three vessels, two of which her pilot sailed in, and the third was towed in by the Pioneer. The Argonaut is going to take a hand in the business soon and it is reported that Capt. Gage, of San Francisco, will bring up a tug to run in connection with the pilot boat. Probably he won't come. The pilot boat has been "playing in hard luck" lately, not having secured a vessel for something like six weeks, and expenses going on all the time When it comes to chasing a vessel, either one of the tugs can get away with the pilot boat without an effort, and it is a very cold day when Capt. Flavel hasn't one of his tugs cruising outside All this competition is fine for the shipping and vessel owners can stand it as long as the opposing tug boats can. I

MORRISON STREET BRIDGE.

PORTLAND, Oct 13, 1886

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

It has been suggested in my hearing by many people that the objections urged by Mr A J Knott against the width of the draw are advanced somewhat late in the day. Perhaps it would be unreasonable to expect the owners of that fattest of Oregon monopolies, "The Stark Street Ferry," to approve of any bridge. Be that as it may, it appears very much as if the policy of the ferry company has been to remain quiescent until preparation of [illegible] struction of the bridge had so far [illegible] make it possible, if not probable, [illegible] ence would crush the enterprise [illegible] prolong the life of the great monopoly [illegible] is the move it is to be hoped that the [illegible] pany will be checkmated by the [illegible] and the people at once. The present [illegible] of property owners on both sides of the [illegible] demands bridges and bridges to [illegible] munication.

It is but just to credit the Stark Street [illegible] company with having been quite [illegible] and reasonable as any monopoly [illegible] pected to be. We may sympathize with [illegible] in view of the curtailment of their [illegible] profits; but this sympathy must not [illegible] sacrifice the interests of two cities. [illegible] must say to the Stark Street Ferry [illegible] what a rich man is reported to have said to [his] coachman, when the latter told [him] the devil stopped the crossing of a [illegible] devil! Drive over him John, [illegible] home."

AN OPEN LETTER TO MR. WILLIAM [illegible]

PORTLAND, Oct. 1[?]

In your communication to The Oregonian of yesterday you demonstrate [illegible] ly, which is your steadfast opposition [illegible] Stark street ferry. Some years ago [illegible] attempted to establish a rival ferry at [illegible] you thought differently concerning [bridges] across the Willamette.

I haven't examined the records, but I doubt the assertion that any real property [illegible] the river lies below the proposed Morrison [street] bridge

Your statement that but four sea-going vessels go to wharves above the site of the bridge is correct, because the piers left standing in the river since 1881 have prevented them. [By] similar argument you could demonstrate that [had a] solid bridge been built at the mouth of the [river] it would be no injury to commerce, because vessels did not go above it.

But statistics do show that during the [season] of 1879-80, just prior to the placing of the piers in the river, there were loaded at the Pacific dock, between Taylor and Main streets, [illegible] part or full cargoes on twenty-seven sea-going vessels that the steamship Great Republic [the] largest vessel that ever came to the port, [lay] at that dock above the site of the bridge; [that] the steamships Columbia, State of California, the Elder and Oregon were accustomed to [take] on cargo there during that season prior to the building of the piers in the river; and that the dock alone in one year shipped over [illegible] of freight, aggregating one and a half [million] dollars in value, upon sea-going vessels [lying] alongside the dock.

Since the obstructions were placed there [only] four vessels have gone above, although the space between the piers is almost twice as wide as the draw will be.

Pacific dock then paid a rent of $[illegible] a month. Now it does not rent for half that sum. The wharf property above the bridge has suffered in like manner, and river boats and [illegible] above the bridge have given notice they will leave as soon as the bridge is built.

These are demonstrable facts. As to the idle assertion that statistics will show a [illegible] majority of the draw bridges in the United States have draws of less width than that of Morrison street, let me say that statistics cannot [illegible] show it. On the contrary, you cannot point out a single instance where a low bridge has been thrown across a river of the size and [cap]acity for navigation of the Willamette, [illegible] land in a harbor, no matter what size [illegible] placed therein. It remained for the [illegible] this company to attempt such a thing.

It seems to me the citizens of East Portland and Portland are not far seeing [illegible] thing If a bridge is constructed [illegible] street, barring the passage of sea going [vessels] then the railroad bridge may do the same [illegible] for the same argument applies that [illegible] ple wharf room below; and when it is all [illegible] late the people of the two cities will see [illegible] business moved down the river, new [illegible] built below the bridges, and their [illegible] improvements above the bridges [illegible] less, empty and idly rotting. They indicted the white men and ignored the bill against the Indian. The petit jury acquitted a Chinaman of a charge which there was strong evidence in support of, but on which they gave him the full benefit of the rules of law and reason applicable to legal testimony. Track laying begins this week on the Spokane & Idaho branch of the N. P. between Coeur d'Alene City and Hansen station.

The track of the Spokane Falls & Palouse railroad is within eight miles of Farmington. The whistle of the N. P. locomotives can easily be heard on the O. R. & N. line.

Walla Walla Union. The O. R. & N. Co. has a force of surveyors cross-sectioning between Farmington and Waldner. Engineer Zehner has made a preliminary survey of the route, and the right of way has been obtained. It is said in railroad circles that the O. R. & N. Co. will build to the mines next season.

Whatcom Reveille. Col. Tilton Sheets, engineer in charge of a party of thirteen, left on the 4th for the head of Lake Whatcom, from which point he will permanently locate the line of the Bellingham Bay Railway & Navigation company together with the location of bridges on the Skagit, Stillaguamish and Snohomish rivers.

Senator Canfield, H. A. Fairchild and T. G. Nichols have just returned from New Westminster, says the Whatcom Reveille, where they held a consultation with the most prominent citizens of that place in relation to the projected railroad to connect this county with the Canadian Pacific. They report a very cordial reception. Two lines are contemplated—one from Hope and another from New Westminster through this county.

Tacoma Ledger. The Northern Pacific railroad company is preparing to build a large transfer boat the same size as the one now in use at Kalama. It will be used on the Columbia at Ainsworth, where the Cascades division crosses the river for transferring cars. It is thought that the hull will be built at Ainsworth and the machinery at Portland. A draftsman for the Willamette Iron works in Portland, was down the fore part of the week taking the dimensions of the machinery of the transfer boat Tacoma, for the purpose of figuring on what they could build the machinery for the new boat for.

On the Cascade division, nineteen miles of track has been laid beyond Ellensburg and ... or two miles on the other side of the tunnel. Of the remainder of the division, about sixty miles have been graded, leaving fifteen and a half to complete the division. It is proposed to have a forty mile section, west from Ellensburg, ready for inspection by the first of next month. On the tunnel, contractor Bennett is making rapid progress. Up to October 2 he had pierced the mountain a distance of 1,080 feet, 985 on this and 715 on the other side. The hole will be bored by the time specified in the contract. The switchback will, in the meantime, be completed over the range by January, provided early snow storms do not impede the progress of the work.

Corvallis Gazette. There is now in the neighborhood of 215,000 bushels of grain stored in Corvallis warehouses. The Philomath warehouse only received about 15,000 bushels, being opened after grain-hauling had commenced. The warehouse at Newton's contains over 7,000 bushels. Considerable wheat has been sold the past few days at 65 cents.

Olympia Standard. Mr. A. J. Burr deserves a good deal more credit than is generally accorded him for his untiring efforts to promote the cranberry industry in this part of the Sound country. MONOPOLIES THAT KILL.

EAST PORTLAND, Oct. 13.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In Saturday's issue of THE OREGONIAN you make the action of the great coal companies of Pennsylvania and New York in advancing the price of coal the text of argument against protection, in an editorial entitled "Protection that Kills."

It is probable that THE OREGONIAN and myself may not agree upon the subject of protection, nor do I seek argument of that question. I do think, however, that it is strangely at fault when it asserts that these companies have a monopoly of the home market through a protective tariff and are thus enabled to restrict the production and advance the price of coal. The tariff of seventy-five cents a ton on imported coal certainly constitutes no part of the reason why they limit production, and is a small factor in fixing the price of that commodity.

These coal companies own nearly all the coal lands in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, as well as control the lines of transportation over which their product is carried to market. More correctly stated, certain transportation companies acquired large coal interests contiguous to their lines of road, and engage in mining, shipping, transporting and selling coal. They usually agree upon and fix the market price of the various grades of coal, as of grate, stove, egg, nut and chestnut, for the summer, and again for the winter season. Because of the greater demand for fuel in the winter months they are able to advance the price. It is a fixed and natural law of the trade that winter advances the price of coal just as it advances the price of flannels and heavy clothing, and from the same causes. So thoroughly do these companies control and grasp the market, and so long have they done so, that they are able closely to estimate the demand that will exist for any given month in the year. This estimated demand is the gross amount of production determined upon, which is then distributed among the several companies in proportion to the producing capacity of each. Under this arrangement Scranton, Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Shamokin collieries each produce a certain number of tons and no more. This is what fixing the production is, and it must be apparent that if foreign importation supplied any part of the consumption of coal, these companies would be compelled to fix their gross production by that much less.

Passing to the bituminous coalfields of western Pennsylvania, the same conditions exist, but not to so great an extent. The Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania railroad companies acquired coal properties in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and opened mines with the purpose of surely and cheaply supplying the consumption of their shops, engines, etc. Some of the stockholders and officers of these companies were or became identified with manufacturing enterprises, as the Carnegie brothers, Kloman, French, Latrobe and others, and quite naturally turned to their transportation companies for a supply of fuel. The result was that the mills and factories of these gentlemen were supplied from the carrying companies' mines with cheaper fuel than could be profitably supplied by outside operators, who were forced to come to railroad prices or be shut out of market.

The truth is, that coal operators forced to pass over these companies' lines to market have made no money for the past ten years or more, and the points of consumption so reached are now mainly supplied by the transportation companies. The markets along the Ohio river are not easily grasped by these companies, as they cannot control the free navigation of the river, though they obstruct it all they can with bridges. The deductions to be made from this condition of affairs are not those condemning the policy of protection, but condemnatory of that loose use of chartered privileges which enables transportation companies to engage in other than their legitimate business. We see the absolute necessity for curbs and legal restraints through laws carefully drawn and vigorously enforced.

In Pennsylvania the miner, the mechanic, indeed the mass of the people, begin to understand the situation, and, while in one breath they express their fealty to American protection, in the next they sternly demand the enforcement of the laws controlling corporations and the enactment of such additional statutes as shall break the iron grasp in which organized monopoly holds the best interests of the state.

Let the young state of Oregon give heed. Let her see to it that no great corporation shall ever ... itself, anaconda like, ... the most vital interests of her people. ... the devastating riots of ... Pennsylvania and ... a study of the ... grown corporations had brought ... Let Oregon profit by the lesson and so escape the terrible experience.

But further argument against the policy of protection is sought in a comparison of the English with the American miners' earnings. No one unacquainted with the mining business can know how faulty and misleading the data from which such comparisons are drawn. The American miner loses at least 50 per cent. of his time in strikes. From minor causes he loses at least 10 per cent. of the remaining time, thus leaving him but 40 per cent. of his time devoted to earning. The sum earned during this time is divided by the number of working days in the year and the result paraded as the poor miner's daily earnings.

That his English brother can show a greater daily average simply arises from the fact that he works more days. Now, it needs no study to arrive at the certain conclusion that if the English miner had a greater demand to supply and the American miner a more restricted demand to meet, the one would work yet more days and the other still fewer days in the year. Such, indeed, would be the effect of free importation of coal. We must seek the causes of the miner's pitiable condition in some other direction.

To corporation and monopoly influences a large portion of the ills that beset him are clearly traceable. This is particularly so in the bituminous regions. It is not unusual for corporations to send their emissaries among the miners of private operators with the purpose of fomenting discontent and a strike. They have not been tardy in suiting means to induce their own miners to go out on a strike for such an advance as they, controlling the routes and rates of transportation could well afford to pay, and then when the strike had become general and bitter to turn their own men to work at the advance and leave the private operator the choice of resuming without profit to himself or of letting his works stand idle.

Other and grave ills the miner brings upon himself. For the most senseless cause he will go on a strike. The discharge of a mule driver or of a worthless digger, or giving some one of the number an extra wagon to fill, and many more trivial reasons have passed under my notice as the prime cause of weeks of continued idleness. As a class, they are proverbially improvident, wasteful and extravagant. Intemperance in eating and drinking afflicts them to a terrible degree. Remove the tariff from coal and these evils would yet remain. The contest would only drop to a lower level, and the miners be but rendered by so much the more miserable.

Legislation may remedy the evils inflicted by grasping corporations, but until the miners free themselves from the thralldom of drink and exercise, and practice industry, temperance and frugality until they cast off the demagogues that in the name of honest labor continue to grow fat at the expense of the toiling miner until they have burst asunder the chains that bind them to their unions, and rise each in his dignity to the exercise of his own will and judgment until they cease to resort to threats of violence and arson and murder to carry their purposes, no amount of tariff reform will ... their condition.

They should ponder upon the plain wholesome ... uttered by the judge who passed ... the Chicago anarchists. ... an coal miner does these ... fail to find anything in his ... that renders his condition more ... of any other class of earth's ... self respecting toilers.

It is ... 18 inches in diameter, and the height ... feet. From about 15 feet to the top the tree is dead. PORTLAND THURSDAY, OCT 14, 1886

A FRESH START

The manager of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company announces by authority of the president and board of directors that it is intended by his company and those associated with it to build at Portland a complete system of terminal works as soon as authority to do so can be received from the state legislature. These works will include a bridge at the north end of the city, a set of machine shops at Albina, a passenger depot on the grounds secured for that purpose three years ago, a freight depot near the river on this side, and the completion of the hotel on Sixth street. There is as yet no definite plan for the last named work, but several schemes are being considered, the undertaking being dependent upon the co-operation of Portland capitalists who have given assurances that they will help the enterprise through. None of the works proposed will be on the scale of magnificence proposed by Mr Villard and instead of an outlay of six millions of dollars, less than one-third of that great sum will be expended. The object is simply to make terminal works suitable to the demands of the business of the city. Nothing will be wasted for display.

This, in a sense, puts Portland just where she left off at the collapse of the great boom in 1883, and it is a notable and important circumstance that we are to secure through the growth and pressure of business these conveniences which were promised somewhat in the nature of a favor only three years ago. The necessity for these things is a demonstration of the solid development of our town as a center of traffic. As THE OREGONIAN has said often before, the time has gone by when Portland expects anything through the good nature or favor of railroad managers or of anybody else. We are to have the proposed works legitimately because the pressure of business demands them, and they will be suited not to high-flown notions of grandeur, but to the necessities of our traffic.

By adding to the convenience of business in Portland, these works will naturally add to the volume and value of business here. They will make another advance in Portland's steady march of progress, and give another assurance of the stability of Portland's position as the traffic and trade center of the country. During the time of construction they will afford employment for a large number of men in the various grades between engineering, superintendence and day labor, and distribute a large amount of ready money among our people. With these works in progress there will this winter be no return of the hard times which formed the first cause of the labor troubles in this city last winter.

Before beginning the work of bridge building, (and without the bridge the other works will be useless,) it will be necessary to secure the right to span the river from the state legislature, which meets at Salem in something less than three months. The state has supreme authority over the Willamette river, and it rests with the legislature to say whether it may or may not be bridged. The engineers of the railroad company have made a plan which, in the judgment of pilots, will not interfere with the free navigation of the river. It prescribes a draw of something more than two hundred feet in width, with modern appliances for rapid shifting of the span, as boats may wish to pass up or down. Only a few seconds will be required to open or close the draw, so that there will be little or no delay. Against such a plan there can be no legitimate objection, and we can not doubt the legislature will grant the desired privilege.

The work of preparing materials will begin at once. The manager of the company here has been directed to receive bids for certain materials to be delivered this fall and winter, and orders for iron work have already been given out in the East, there being no factories here with the facilities for casting the heavy pieces required.

PLAIN ANSWER TO A PLAIN QUESTION

The correspondent of THE OREGONIAN who asks "Will you or some of your numerous readers inform me why I and many others who think as I do cannot employ Chinese help in and around our homes in Tacoma without danger to our persons and property?" may be answered without difficulty. It is because Tacoma is under the government of the "riff raff" spoken of by the writer or is terrorized by it. Moreover, the town, like all mushroom places of forced growth, lacks, as yet, the unification of that better sentiment and development of those moral qualities that give stability to a place and strength and courage to a people. It is always so at a "boomed" railroad town. To such a place all sorts of people are attracted. But the vicious elements are first to coalesce and show their power. The sound materials of social organization must have time to harmonize and assimilate, to knit and grow. Meantime, the "riff raff" have things much their own way.

The writer's suggestion that "the city fathers at Tacoma enter into negotiations with Thiel for some of his detectives to enforce the laws in that town, is useless. The officials of the town represent the lawless classes, or are under bonds to them. Tacoma is a hot bed of all the unrest of socialism, so-called, and it will take time both for this ferment to subside and for the solid and permanent elements of society to take form and make growth. Of course, in time, if the town is ever to amount to anything, the principles of law and order, the sentiments of humanity and justice, the conditions of peace, of industry and of saving contribute, will gain the ascendant, and the rebellion against all these as well as against the laws of the United States, will come to an end. [illegible] of the town [illegible] is coming of this day.

DEMOCRATIC ADMONITION

The New York World [illegible] parties as [illegible] of the country [illegible] that the president [illegible] with sufficient fidelity his civil service [illegible] administration, public officials will not be permitted to control and direct political affairs. A democratic president, the World says, in one of these recent articles of administration, notified public servants that "a quiet and unobtrusive exercise of individual political rights is the reasonable measure of their party service." He issued an order to executive subordinates notifying them that "office-holders are the agents of the people, not their masters," and declaring that "the influence of federal office holders should not be felt in the manipulation of political primary meetings and nominating conventions."

But, says the World this order has been defiantly disregarded and openly disobeyed by many office-holders during the past summer. Because the World has set forth this fact and the proofs of it, certain democratic papers have said that it is no "real friend" of the president. These it answers thus: "Are they not 'real friends' of the president who insist that he shall prove the sincerity of his reform promises and secure respect for his authority? Only false friends advise a man to be untrue to himself and to his duty." The World is an excellent example of the thoroughly independent newspaper. In this respect it excels most of the journals that make "mugwumpery" a profession. For so anxious are they to justify themselves for having supported Mr Cleveland for the presidency that they think it necessary not to point out mistakes or oversights or to criticise the conduct of his administration.

The twenty-ninth volume of Bancroft's colossal work will be volume one of the History of Oregon. It will be published soon, and will cover the history of Oregon from the year 1834 to the year 1848. The more remote portion of the history of Oregon has already been published in the author's History of the Northwest Coast,—two vols.,—noticed at length in THE OREGONIAN some time ago. The volumes now to appear will deal with events which occurred within the memory of men now living, they are wrought out largely from original sources, and the result, as we judge from specimen pages before us, will be very interesting and valuable. An extended notice will appear in THE OREGONIAN as soon as the first volume of this fine work is issued, which will probably be about the 22d inst.

THE HISTORY OF TARIFF REFORM

The popular belief that Great Britain has always been "free trade" and America protection is without historical foundation. The rate of the first tariff on imports established under our constitution did not average 8 per cent. In 1795 the average rate of the tariff in this country was 11 per cent., and in 1800 in Great Britain it was 22 per cent., or just double the rate in this country five years earlier. In 1811 our tariff averaged 35 per cent, but that was a war tariff, passed, like the Morrill tariff of 1861 to meet the special necessity for a large revenue. In 1810 the average in Great Britain was 30 per cent., and there had been no doubling because of the war. At the close of the war of 1812 there was a return on our part to the old rates, but in 1821 our average had been increased to 21 per cent. In 1820 the British rate, on the average, was 31 per cent. In 1831 our average was 23½ per cent., and in 1830 the British average was 31 per cent., the same as ten years before. In 1841 our average was only 11½ per cent., while that of Great Britain was 33 per cent. Down to this period the averages show that if either country was free trade it was the United States, and not Great Britain. In 1842 we returned to a high tariff, but in 1846 we went back to a low tariff. The year 1846 was memorable in England, for then Sir Robert Peel first turned her face in the direction of free trade. Peel came into office in 1841, pledged to uphold the principle of protection for home grown grain, but in 1846 he repealed the corn laws. This act, the greatest of Peel's career, procured him the bitterest denunciation of the protectionists of his party. The arguments urged in England in favor of the corn laws were the same that are urged to-day in America. In England then, as in America now, every class in succession resisted the movement of the principle of free trade when it came to be applied to its own particular interests. As late as 1860 in England the paper manufacturers fought Gladstone's repeal of the duty on paper. Many of these manufacturers had been staunch free traders under Peel, but when free trade was applied to their own pet interest they became protectionists for paper.

The corn law, repealed in 1846, was passed in 1815, and imposed a duty on the importation of foreign grain which amounted to prohibition. The principle of the measure was that until the corn grower had secured a handsome profit the people had no right to any reduction in the price of food. The fallacy of protection was that Tom should pay Dick more than the market price for corn and Dick would be able to buy more of Tom, and both would be enriched. This cheap sophistry was riddled into cobwebs by Cobden, Bright, Villiers, Macaulay and O'Connell. The leader of the protectionists against the apostate Peel was Disraeli, who sneered at the great statesman as "a watcher of the atmosphere, who takes his observations, and when he finds the wind in a particular quarter trims his sails to suit it. Such a man is no more a great statesman than the man who gets up behind a carriage is a great whip." Disraeli described Peel as "sublime mediocrity," and his government as "organized hypocrisy." Peel calmly announced himself, however, as a convert to the principle of free trade, and while he did not apply it in extreme severity at once to the situation he declared that its introduction into all departments of England's legislation was only a question of time and convenience. Disraeli fought Peel in vain. He called him "a trader on other people's intelligence a political burglar of other men's ideas a political peddler who bought his party in his cheapest market and sold it in his dearest." Peel passed his corn bill, but the protectionists in their rage revenged themselves by defeating the government's coercion bill for Ireland and the Peel ministry fell in its hour of triumph amid the cry, "Protection kills you, not your coercion bill." Peel in his farewell speech eloquently said that while his "name would perhaps be execrated by the monopolist, who would maintain protection for his own individual benefit, it may be that I shall leave a name sometimes remembered with expressions of good will in those places which are the abode of men whose lot it is to labor and earn their bread by the sweat of their brow—a name remembered with expressions of good will when they shall recreate their exhausted strength with abundant and untaxed food, the sweeter because it is no longer leavened with a sense of injustice."

Peel had carried free trade, which O'Connell had helped to victory, and then O'Connell, in the same spirit of the present home rule policy, helped the protectionists to pull down Peel for the sake of Ireland. O'Connell, like Parnell, was for Ireland, like the sailor who, no matter how many girls he flirts with in foreign ports, boasts that "his heart is still true to Poll," so O'Connell's real heart's mistress was Ireland.

From 1846 to 1861 Great Britain and the United States moved in the same direction, though Great Britain moved faster than we did. In 1851 our average tariff was 22½ per cent., and in 1850 the British average was 20 per cent. In November, 1852, the house of commons passed Lord Palmerston's resolution pledging parliament to "the policy of unrestricted competition, firmly maintained and prudently extended," by a vote of 468 to 53. In 1860 France engaged to remove all prohibitory duties on all the staples of British manufactures and to reduce greatly the duties on English coal and coke, bar and pig iron, tools, machinery, yarns, flax and hemp, while England in return proposed to sweep away all duties on manufactured goods and to reduce greatly the duties on foreign wines. In reply to the criticism that England gave more than she got, Gladstone stigmatized as "ridiculous the whole theory that, because your neighbor, like France, foolishly cuts himself off from the easy purchase of the articles England has to sell, it was therefore England's business to cut herself off from the easy purchase of the articles France has to sell and England wishes to buy."

In 1860 the British average tariff was 12 per cent., while in 1861 our average was 15 per cent. there having been a reduction in 1856. From 1862 to 1865 our average was 30 per cent., for the war of 1861 compelled a return to the policy of restriction and doubled the average rate just as was the case under the emergency of the war of 181–. In 1866 our average was 40 per cent. From 1866 to 1870 our average was 5 per cent. In 1870 the British average was 7 per cent. In 1871 our average was 40 per cent., in 1872 31⅓ per cent., from 1873 to 1875 27½ per cent., from 1876 to 1880 30 per cent., and from 1881 to 1884 29½ per cent. The British average in 1880 was 6½ per cent.

The fall in our average after 1870 was due, not to any change in our tariff policy, but to the strict application of that policy by placing on the free list all articles, or nearly all articles not produced in this country, and keeping up the taxes on manufactures and other protected articles. On the other hand England has so steadily reduced her average rate of tariff taxation by the abolition of protective taxes that there is but one tax left in Great Britain that can be called protective—that on plate, etc., of the precious metals. With this exception the tariff taxation of England is wholly for revenue, while the continental tariff taxes are largely for protection and yet the averages of the protection tariffs of Europe are not much higher than those of England. According to the latest statistics the average in France is 6½ per cent., in the German empire 6⅓ per cent., in Austria Hungary 8⅓ per cent., in Belgium 7 per cent., in Italy 8 per cent., and in the Netherlands only ¾ of 1 per cent.

Our average is fully five times as high as that of these European protective countries, and yet Sam Randall wants to protect tin plate manufacturers to the extent of double the present tax on imported plates and the American Iron and Steel association wants a still higher tax on steel blooms and steel rails.

Government grants patents and thereby injoins itself. The Philadelphia Commercial List states that all the shipbuilders on the Delaware refuse to bid for the new steamers recently advertised for by the government for the use of the engineering department, because the specifications require Westinghouse-patent engines, which are controlled by one man.

MICHAEL DAVITT

The great Irish agitator, Michael Davitt, who lectures before our citizens this evening, is one of the foremost figures in the history of the present Irish struggle for self-government. He is doing a great work, different from that of Parnell, but a work without which Parnell would never have risen from the obscure leader of half a dozen home rulers to the head of a great party which to-day includes 311 members of the English house of commons and polled at the last election 1,344,000 votes, or within 76,000, or only 4 per cent. of the united strength of the tories and the liberal dissenters from Gladstone's policy. Michael Davitt founded the land league, that is, he organized the whole body of the Irish people behind Parnell; he organized the land league in America, whose generous contributions have kept the coffers of the home rule party full, besides relieving the distress of thousands of helpless victims of inhuman evictions and thousand of others who were not evicted only because the wretched homes on the sands of Galway and Donegal where they starved were not worth the outrage of dispossession.

Parnell, of English and Yankee blood, though of Irish birth, never suffered personally any of the horrors of English misgovernment. He belonged to the Irish Protestant gentry, but Davitt was born of Irish peasant parentage, in county Mayo, about forty years ago. While yet a child a brutal landlord tore the roof from the cabin that sheltered him, and the Davitt family, six in number, were thrown out upon the roadside of Mayo to live or die, like thousands had been before them. At 11 years of age young Davitt went to work in a cotton mill at Haslingden, England, where his arm was caught in the machinery and so badly mangled that it became necessary to amputate it at the shoulder. At 13 he entered a printing office and became an excellent and swift compositor. When he was subsequently tried for Fenianism his employer testified that he was "the most faithful, upright and industrious young man he had ever known." At 20 years of age in 1867 he became an active organizer of the Fenian brotherhood, and was arrested May 14, 1870. On the perjured testimony of an informer, who swore that Davitt was privy to the attack on Chester Castle in 1867, he was sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude. After serving seven years and seven months of his sentence he was released on a ticket of leave December 19, 1877. He went to the home of his childhood in Ireland, and bonfires were lit on every hill in Mayo. Then he went to America and in a lecture delivered in Brooklyn, October 1878, first announced his scheme of the land league. Returning to Ireland, he roused the whole west country by his eloquence and finally organized the land league at Dublin and formed an alliance with Parnell who had succeeded to the leadership of the home rule league on the death of the famous Isaac Butt. On the 19th of November, 1879, he was arrested but the prosecution fell through. Davitt then organized the famine relief measures. Parnell and Dillon came to America and America's generosity saved Ireland from the dreadful experience of the famine of '47-'48. Davitt formed the ladies league, was again arrested charged with having violated the spirit of his ticket of leave and spent five months in Richmond jail, making over nine years in all that he has been confined in an English prison. He is a self educated man, educated like our own great anti slavery agitator, Garrison, from the printer's case. He speaks nearly all the living languages, is a correct, fluent, animated and able writer, a ready speaker and a wonderful organizer. He has written articles on the land, labor and social questions for the leading reviews of the world. He has never received a penny from the Irish people for his services, although offered thousands of dollars. He is a man of stainless integrity in public and private life, a sober, pious enthusiast like Garrison. Indeed he might be called the Garrison of Ireland. Both were born in poverty, both were graduates of the printing office, both suffered imprisonment. Like Garrison, Davitt is a man of benignant, amiable and kindly nature, but terribly in earnest. Like Garrison he is calm, genial, but resolute, he is that tremendous force an intelligent, able, pure man following his cause and his conscience without compromise. He is unterrified, incorruptible, unselfish, without any personal ambition, losing himself so absolutely in his cause that, even when differing as he does with Parnell in his theory of the land question, he always yields his own views and gives both hands to the party of home rule. It is hardly necessary to say that while Davitt was in youth a Fenian he has always been the unflinching denouncer of the dynamite and dagger Irish nihilists as the worst enemies of God and the suffering country they assume to aid but really help to assassinate.

A strong proof of the absolute goodness of Davitt's nature and his high-souled sincerity of patriotism is the fact that his great sufferings in English prisons for his opinions have not soured his nature or made a crank of him. In his published lectures, in his story of his prison life there are no bitter reflections, no personal rancor, no attempt to posture as a martyr, he is not a man with a personal grievance, he is a man with ideas to enunciate and to execute, and he has thus far dedicated his life calmly but resolutely to the cause of Ireland, he is a magnificent Irish peasant, always at the feet of his unfortunate mistress, his country, his long suffering, indomitable Ireland. Davitt comes to America for his fourth visit at a critical time for Ireland. The failure of the tenants relief bill means an increased number of evictions, and evictions in Ireland mean a band of armed police, backed by soldiers, driving infirm and starving people out of their homes on the edge of winter to perish in the roadways. Professor Thorold Rogers, an eminent Englishman, says that the landlords make and insist on a claim which would reduce their tenants to beggary if it were paid. It is a word of truth spoken in the form of a jest when in answer to the remark, "I don't see that the Irish have any ground for complaint, some wit replied, "No they have no ground at all. That's the trouble. The landlords own it all." The Irish correspondent of the Cleveland Leader writes:

I am told that tens of thousands of acres of [illegible] lands rent for $10 to $15 per acre. There are [illegible] than [illegible] in Ireland by [illegible] tenants who are [illegible] farms of not more than [illegible] acre and [illegible] of [illegible] and less than five acres. 33,000 families [illegible] and numbers live on rented farms of between [illegible] and ten acres and [illegible] 000 families on holdings between ten and fifteen acres.

This land is no better than the rich land of Ohio. It requires manure and needs the best of cultivation. Produce is in most instances worth but little more in the market than those of Ohio farmers and the American farmer would find it hard indeed, to make a living, for himself and family on less than fifty acres if he owned the land. If he had that size farm here he would pay from $500 to $1000 a year rent for it, whether the crops failed or not and he would be considered a rich farmer to be able to rent so much.

Suppose however the farm to be of five ten or fifteen acres. He must pay $5 $10 or $15, and more rent for it and still make a living for his family. That is what more than 150,000 families are trying to do in Ireland at the present time. 58,000 families are trying to pay from $5 to $25 rent for less than five acres of land and 16,000 families are trying to live on one acre.

In our judgment the cause of Davitt and Parnell depends on America. The Irish Americans have furnished the sinews of war that has made home rule agitation and the land league efficient, and these sinews of war they will continue to furnish. Wilfred Blunt, an able English liberal, who married the grand daughter of Lord Byron, takes this view in a recent letter, in which he says:

The true Ireland of national aspirations is over the seas and will fight the battle of their old home without the slightest regard for Lord Salisbury's sword or his economical logic. Ireland in the eyes of her exiled children or their descendants is exactly in the position of Greece sixty years ago when she achieved her independence through the help of the Greeks settled in Europe. Her sons have been driven out from her shores but by an admirable revenge of history have prospered and grown rich and are now commanding the sympathy as Mr Gladstone remarked of the whole civilized world. They will raise the world yet against us and our own shame if we resort seriously to our old bloody methods. No government here in democratic England will stand long against the indignant scorn of outside opinions. We shall be forced from our purpose and America especially will oblige us to understand that, political economy notwithstanding the Irish nation has a right to live.

Coal rings are operating in almost all the cities of the United States. The ring in Milwaukee has put up the price of coal to $7 per ton, and the district attorney says he intends to lay the matter before the grand jury. It is his opinion that members of the ring can be indicted and punished under the laws of Wisconsin for conspiracy. It is pretty certain that if a trial jury should get a chance at them they might as well be anarchists for all the favor they would find.

At the election in Georgia, held one day last week, an amendment to the constitution of the state, to allow pensions to be paid to disabled soldiers of the Confederate army was adopted almost without opposition. Several Northern papers are complaining of this but it is not easy to see how it can be any outsider's business. If ever it shall be proposed to pay these pensioners out of the national treasury, then it will be time enough to talk.

In the Georgia legislature elected last Tuesday there will be but fifteen anti prohibitionists. But prohibition in Georgia does not take the form of a general prohibitory law, but of local or county option. Pursuing this plan and refusing to make prohibition a political issue, the prohibitionists of Georgia claim to have extirpated the liquor traffic in four-fifths of the counties of the state.

Illinois has 8201 miles of railway, assessed this year upon a valuation of $62,972,101. Within one year 177 miles of new road have been built. The total valuation of property in the state is $728,178,132. The proportion of the railroad assessment to the total assessment is a little less than 9 per cent. There are seventy-two railway companies in the state.

Great was the astonishment of certain candidates last June to find that a nomination by Mitchell wasn't equivalent to an election. It is said that the awakening was so rude that they haven't yet got over the thump sufficiently to enable them to come to Portland since his return to renew their allegiance.

Up to this time about 241,000,000 silver dollars have been coined. Of these 60,000,000 are in circulation. The remainder are in the custody of the treasury, with silver certificates outstanding against a large part of them.

Round about Chicago, within one mile of the city limits, there are suburbs that contain a population of more than 100,000. The city limits will soon be extended to include this population, and perhaps further.

AS TO EMPLOYING CHINESE.

ELLENSBURG, W T, Oct. 11

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Will you or some of your numerous readers inform me why I and many others who think as I do cannot employ Chinese help in and around our homes in Tacoma without danger to our persons or property?

I am led to ask this question by my observations here and along the line of the Northern Pacific railroad between here and the Cascade tunnel during the past six days.

I find Chinese employed in the kitchens of every hotel here and in a large number of private residences. They have almost a monopoly of the laundry business, and I have been a witness to labors of over 1000 Chinese on the line of the railroad between here and Tunnel City. The hotel keepers, the contractors on the road, the officers of the same, and the best citizens, speak in the highest terms of their usefulness and yet it is only two months since, when I was last here, that there was great danger that the only Chinamen employed outside the laundries would be hung. All this has changed, and why? Let me tell you.

About two months ago the contractors for the Cascade branch of the Northern Pacific railroad became discouraged they would not be able to finish their contracts in time to prevent loss. They had shipped in free over 1000 white laborers in the four months preceding, but only about 1500 of them were then on the works. The remainder, those shipped from the East, after working a couple of days, went to Tacoma, Seattle or other places on the Sound, those shipped here from Portland and the Sound struck out for the East after two or three days' work, thus leaving the contractors short handed and unable to finish their contracts. This, too, without any complaint about wages, food, etc.

At this stage M C Sullivan, special agent of G H Thiel's detective force, was consulted, and after studying matters over, under fear of the antagonism of the white labor, it was decided by the officers of the company and the contractors that they would employ enough Chinamen, assisted by the white labor they had and might get to fulfill their contracts. The Chinamen fearing trouble did not respond to the call for laborers readily, and the first gang of about eighty came only after the most solemn pledges that they would be fully protected, and these pledges have been fully carried out. Mr Sullivan sent for about fifty detectives and they came here from Mr Thiel's New York, St. Louis, St. Paul, Denver and Portland agencies. Every man of them looked to his part and expressed himself determined to protect the Chinese employed on the works. These men, having none of the prejudices of the Pacific slope, so conducted themselves as to quiet the fears of the Chinamen here and gave confidence to others who wished to come, so that the contractors now have over 1000 Chinamen at work, and can get as many more as are needed. Chinamen are also working in hotels, restaurants and private houses without fear, and yet two short months ago it was stated an army could not protect them if they came here.

Reasoning from these premises, why would it not be a good idea for the city fathers at Tacoma to enter into negotiations with Mr Thiel for some of his detectives to enforce the law in that town.

I am informed that while there were fifty detectives at first the number has been reduced to about thirty, who guard 1000 Chinamen scattered along the road from Ellensburg to the tunnel fifty two miles. A dozen or two would no doubt have a good effect upon the riff raff of Tacoma or Seattle. GEORGE BISH

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

READINGS LAST NIGHT.—The second evening of Mr. Dudley's readings were given last night in Y. M. C. A. hall. The first selection, "Protestations," was given by Miss Julia Chamberlin, of Salem, with violin obligato by Miss Dora McCord, of East Portland. Miss Chamberlin possesses a highly cultured voice of rich tone and great flexibility and compass, her appearance is prepossessing and she certainly scored a grand success on this, her first appearance in this city. Mr. Dudley, in the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice," displayed the finest conception and excelled his previous efforts. Miss Chamberlin who, during the evening was the recipient of two handsome bouquets of flowers, gave as her second selection "Oh, Mio Fernande," to which she received a hearty encore. The evening closed with the humorous selection by Burdette, "The Hatchet Story."

PREPARING FOR THE INCANDESCENT LIGHT.—P. F. Morey is down the river purchasing the cedar poles on which to string the wires for lighting the city by incandescent lamps. It will require 1500 poles, which will be about thirty-five feet high. The wire used will be smaller than that now in use for the arc lights. About 190 miles will be required, a part of which is already here and the remainder coming. Cables containing many wires will start from the electric light works running up and down First street, from which a wire will branch off up each cross street and a loop down each street to Front. A large copper wire will traverse the western boundary of the lighted district for the return current, to which all the small wires will be connected. It is expected that the wires will be strung and the lights "in bright burning" by Christmas.

NO WINTER YET.—The gardens around town are gay with roses and all kinds of autumn flowers, there having been no frost as yet to nip even the most tender vines. Parties are daily sending bunches of rosebuds to friends at the East to give them an idea of our genial climate. The leaves still hang on the trees, but on the maples they are beginning to look worn and weary, as if waiting patiently for the frost to shower them down. The few showers of rain, the clanging cries of flocks of wild geese as they pass over the city at night, and the sight of long rows of geese, ducks and snipe in all the markets are about the only signs we have that we are in the melancholy days and that winter is approaching.

THE NARROW GAUGE.—One span of the narrow gauge bridge across the south fork of the Santiam is up, and the material for the remainder is coming forward slowly. The approach on the south side is nearing completion, and it is expected that trains will be over in a few days. The last lot of steel rails for the extension to this city will arrive on the next steamer. One of the inclines for the crossing at Ray's Landing is completed, and as soon as the pile-driver is released from the bridge over the south fork, the other incline will be built and trains will begin to be transferred.

BEAUTIFUL PICTURES.—The West Shore is preparing for its next number some beautiful engravings of the Mechanics' fair, which will be executed in the extremely artistic style which characterizes all its illustrations. The West Shore is the only magazine on the Pacific coast publishing new and original engravings, and whoever sends away a copy of the next number will have the gratification of sending not only handsome pictures of an institution which reflects great credit upon the city, but a magazine which is without an equal in most of the largest cities of the United States.

THE PRIZE HUB RANGE.—In the fair there are a large number of ranges, which interest all classes because they are a necessity in every well regulated family, hotel or restaurant. In the Prize Hub Range it may be termed the ideal, as it includes in its specialties broiler hearth and doors, improved oven door lining, end and front feed doors and long oven hearth. It bakes perfectly. The edges are steel finished and in general effect are very attractive and add greatly to the furnishings of the kitchen. Chown & Curtis, 212 First, are the local agents for these ranges.

NO END TO CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.—This is the sixth or seventh fatal accident of the kind reported in Oregon and Washington this fall. James Fannon and Jimmy Gilson left Colville to hunt for deer October 5. They parted to circle a hill. When half way around Gilson heard a noise in the brush, and finally concluded it was a deer. He fired, and was soon horror-stricken to discover that he had shot and killed his friend. Mr. Fannon was a native of Ireland and about 60 years of age. He was an old resident of Colville, and has been engaged most of the time in farming.

BADLY WANTED AS A WITNESS.—Yesterday's Astorian has the following: U. S. Deputy Marshal J. C. Ross returned from Portland yesterday, whither he had been with Thomas Mountain, Jr., whom he had arrested here last Sunday, while en route to San Francisco, for attempting to leave the state. He is needed up there as an important witness before the United States grand jury in a case of alleged illegal voting. Judge Deady told him he would require bail in the sum of $10,000, which little sum may be forthcoming to-day.

INDICTED FOR MURDER.—The grand jury have returned an indictment against James Kelly, charging him with the murder of Frederick Kaiseuba July 7 by administering to him morphine. Kelly was arraigned and allowed until Friday to plead. Caples & Mulkey appeared as his attorney. Kelly looks well, considering his long confinement, and when asked to stand up and have the indictment read to him exhibited less nervousness than District Attorney McGinn, who made the arraignment.

VISITING RAILWAY OFFICIALS.—Mr. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., president of the Union Pacific railway, and party, left Huntington yesterday at 4 P. M. for Portland. Their train will lie at Umatilla until 5 this morning, when they will proceed to Portland, viewing the Columbia river scenery by daylight and arriving here about 4 P. M. Mr. Adams is booked for San Francisco by the Oregon leaving to-night. Mr. S. R. Calloway, the general manager, will probably stay here several days.

RECEIPTS FROM LICENSES.—The amount paid into the city treasury for licenses during the current quarter, as reported by Policeman Tichnor, is as follows: Saloons, 143 at $75 each, $10,725; grocery licenses, 40 at $12 50 each, $500; hack, dray, insurance and other licenses, $3500; total amount, $14,725. There are yet several saloons to hear from, and as there were 163 last quarter, it is probable that there are at least ten less at present.

WITNESS UNABLE TO GAIN LIBERTY.—Counsel for Helen McGregor finds it somewhat difficult to "habeas corpus" her out of jail, as besides being held as a witness, there is an indictment against her for complicity with Bray in robbing Donnelly. Even if the district attorney did promise to have this indictment dismissed, he has not yet done so, nor will he be likely to until the appeal to the supreme court in the Bray case is decided.

GYMNASTICS FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN.—A very interesting exhibition of Dr. Dio Lewis's system of light gymnastics was given yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium by Mrs. Nina Larowe, assisted by several pupils. The system was explained and the benefits to be derived from the exercises set forth. Classes will meet for formation at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

BABY SHOW.—There will be a baby show at the Mechanics' pavilion next Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Three prizes will be awarded—a gold medal for the first, grand silver medal second, and silver medal for the third. The babies must be over six and under eighteen months old, and entries must be made before 10 A. M. Tuesday, the 19th inst.

LECTURE TO-NIGHT.—Gen. John Gibbon, U. S. A., will deliver a lecture upon the Yellowstone and its wonders, illustrated with the stereopticon, to-night, Thursday, October 14, at 8 o'clock, at the Tabernacle, corner Tenth and Taylor streets. Admission 50 cents. The proceeds will be devoted to the relief of the Charleston sufferers.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—Yesterday afternoon a 7-year-old son of M. M. Lucas was badly bitten in the thigh by a large dog owned by Herman Koekritz, the butcher, at Fourth and Sheridan streets. The matter was reported at the police station and proper action will be taken. The boy is quite lame from the effects of the bite.

TO FAIR VISITORS.—The press rooms of THE OREGONIAN will be open to visitors during the fair season and thereafter at 4 P. M. daily, except Sunday, and at 6 P. M. Wednesdays and Thursdays, at which hours the lightning press will be in operation.

FROM VANCOUVER.—The steamer Lurline will leave Vancouver at 6:15 this evening for Portland, thus giving all who desire, the opportunity to hear Michael Davitt, go to the Mechanics' fair, or to the New Market.

THE MILES TO GRAY'S HARBOR.—The trip of the 10th was an extra. The steamer goes to Gray's Harbor on Saturday morning, the 16th; and again on November 1, and twice a month thereafter.

When all so-called remedies fail, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures.

U. S. vs. James McFarland; selling liquor to Indians, plea of guilty, sentenced to one year in penitentiary.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT, NO. 1.

The jury in the case of C. W. Leick vs. George Flavel brought in a verdict in plaintiff's favor for $497 50. Leick sued for services as an architect.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT, NO. 2.

John Schmeer et al. vs. Anna Schmeer; demurrer to complaint overruled; one week to answer.

State of Oregon vs. Frances Kelly; keeping a bawdy house; time for pleading continued.

State of Oregon vs. M. B. Rankin; trial continued until Friday, the 15th inst.

In the suit for divorce of Brily Grunwald vs. Joseph Grunwald, Judge Stearns yesterday set an order of default taken Monday aside, and made an order allowing defendant to answer to plaintiff's complaint, which charges him with desertion and failure to provide.

AN INJUNCTION SUIT.

Judge Stearns will announce his decision to-day in the case of J. B. Montgomery vs. the N. P. Terminal company. A short time ago the terminal company applied for and obtained permission from the county court for leave to appropriate a portion of River street, Albina, for the purpose of laying a switch and side track to connect the main line with the wharf of Allen & Lewis. The permission was given on condition that the terminal company construct upon what is known as the old East bridge in River street a light board fence five feet high, brace the bridge and make the same strong and substantial.

J. B. Montgomery then had the Terminal company restrained in the state circuit court from going ahead with the work, and a motion was subsequently filed to have the restraining order vacated. The question to be decided is whether it is to hold or be set aside.

DEMURRER OVERRULED.

Several weeks ago D. P. Thompson brought suit in the state circuit court against Ben Holladay to recover some $11,000 advanced to Ben Holladay at different times while Mr. Thompson was receiver. The loan was secured by certain shares of stock in the Portland Street Railway company, which Ben Holladay mortgaged to D. P. Thompson in consideration of the various sums of money advanced from time to time, said to be $5000. A demurrer was filed to the complaint on the ground that D. P. Thompson, while acting as receiver of the estate, could not legally enter into such an agreement with one of the principals concerned. Judge Stearns held that while this was correct in some instances, the point was not well taken in the present instance, and overruled the demurrer. It appears D. P. Thompson, in taking the mortgage, did not claim a lien prior to that claimed by Joe Holladay to the stock. For this and other reasons held to be sufficient, the demurrer was considered not well taken. Defendant will now have to answer.

POLICE COURT.

Fred Love, a young fellow about 18 years of age, was tried and convicted of vagrancy and sentenced to twenty-five days' imprisonment, with the alternative of leaving the city within forty-eight hours. The testimony of several policemen elicited the fact that Love has been hanging around a beer garden at First and Lincoln streets, and making himself obnoxious by getting into fights, etc. George Manning was fined $5 for allowing cows to run at large, and P. J. Jackson and Frank Kinney $10 each for drunkenness. They were arrested at First and B streets early yesterday morning by policemen James and Belcher, while kicking up a high time. Jackson was subsequently released on putting up $5 bail and was foolish enough to appear when the court convened, plead not guilty and demand a trial. He got it and $10. Jackson paid the fine and now feels sorry he didn't leave the $5 he originally had up and stay out of court.

INDIAN WAR VETERANS.

The Indian war veterans of the North Pacific coast will meet in this city on Wednesday, Nov. 3, for the purpose of comparing notes. On the evening of that day an address will be delivered by Hon. Elwood Evans, of Tacoma, W. T., under the auspices of Multnomah Camp No. 2, I. W. V., to the general public, on the "Indian war of 1855-6; the authorities and people of Oregon and Washington territory vindicated;" for which a charge will be made for admission, to meet expenses and possibly to assist the camp in carrying on its laudable work. The lecture-room at Masonic temple has been secured for that purpose. The citizens of Portland are too well acquainted with Mr. Evans to need to be told that a rich treat is in store for them and much to interest the student of history.

A Yellowish Coat

Upon the tongue, particularly near its base, is of itself sufficient to denote biliousness, an ailment to the development of which the hot weather—it may be remarked in passing—is extremely favorable, and which autumn often brings in its train as a lingering legacy. If not remedied—which it speedily may be with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—then follow aggravated disorder of the stomach and bowels, dull pains beneath the lower right ribs, nausea and headache. A prompt use of this invaluable specific is always desirable, no matter what season. Upon the liver it exerts an influence directly beneficial. The bile, the obstruction to its flow being relieved by the relaxation of the bowels, returns to its natural channel, and the portion of it which has forced its way into and contaminated the blood is expelled. The stomach also resumes its digestive function. Rheumatism, fever and ague and kidney troubles also succumb to the Bitters.

SALE OF DAMAGED GOODS.—The sale of damaged goods at Zan Bros.' storeroom on Friday will be for the goods that were saved in the best condition. We have examined many of these goods, and could hardly tell that they had ever been hurt in the least, and dealers, both city and country, need not be afraid to purchase, as it will be almost impossible for anyone to see any difference between these goods and perfect goods. They will be offered in lots to suit all purchasers, and we would strongly advise dealers to be present even if they do not purchase, for it will be long before such bargains are again offered.

THE MUMMY OF SESOSTRIS

Among his perfumed wrappings I amiss lay,
Son of the sun, the conqueror with [illegible] years
The jewel holes were in his rounded ears
The thick lips closed above th' embalmer's clay
Unguent had turned his white locks amber gray
And on his puissant coin fresh from the shears
The thin hair gleamed which full three thousand years
Of careless sleep could never disarray
Hands henna stained across his ample breast
Were laid in peace but though the narrow eyes
Flamed fires no more beneath the forward brow,
His keen hawk nose such pride, such power expressed
Near Kadesh stream we heard the Hittite cries
And saw by Hebrew toil San's temple rise grow.

THE KID'S FUND.

BY LIEUT J M T[illegible] U S A
(Written for the Oregonian)

When the Coeur d'Alene gold excitement was at its height a few years ago, the little pan-handle of Idaho shooting away into the north and jammed in between Washington and Montana was the [illegible] in the whole United States News of the wonderful richness of the diggings spread far and wide and before the [illegible] well got started Eagle [illegible] and the half dozen other [illegible] the banks of [illegible] gulch were [illegible] and bustling with excitement [illegible] the goose fortune had begun [illegible] golden eggs for everybody in the [illegible] among the peaks [illegible] for the lucky [illegible] day grant [illegible] yell, [illegible] from [illegible] not happy There were at the time about 3000 prospectors scattered throughout the mountains and [illegible] appearance [illegible] old one among them [illegible] class that should a baby be born in lawful wedlock, in a new mining district the permanency and success of the camp would be an assured fact forever

"I'll tell you what it is, boys " said a rough-and-tumble specimen who went by the name of Hank Potter [illegible] it is " repeated that individual, springing upon a barrel in front of a saloon in Eagle City one cold December night, "we've got to have a baby in camp The Coeur d'Alenes are doing purty big now and no [illegible] but she'll bust sure afore long and bust high too unless we get a youngster in the gulch "

"Let's offer a reward for a baby " suggested Bart Stevens, an old timer who had followed the first gold excitement across the plains to California in 1849

"An make it a whooper while ye're at it," put in illiterate, good natured Dave Campbell.

"All right," answered Potter for the crowd "Some of you fellers that's got school larnin jest step into the captain's offus and put y'er flipper to writin a reward for a baby Make it solid $5000 in dust and nuggets in all it The Kid's Fund an' while yer at it say the boy or gal will get a hundred foot claim in the gulch besides, for a birthday gift [illegible] pard?"

The reward was made out and posted "The Kid's Fund according to orders Various papers containing the announcement were stuck against prominent trees through the diggings and the camp settled down to quietness and repose once more Somehow or other the news of the offer crept across the lofty peaks of the Bitter Root range and was wafted on the winter wind far up in the wilds of Idaho to a lonely snow covered cabin [illegible] Northern Pacific railroad [illegible] wife who had followed her [illegible] from [illegible] state was suffering poverty hunger [illegible] and [illegible] with the husband of her choice [illegible] young couple had to [illegible] the wilderness for a year but prosperity would not come to them He spent his days of labor as a freight hand on the railroad while she [illegible] watching and waiting [illegible] Times went hard [illegible] cult to make [illegible] was cold [illegible] deer most [illegible] band dropped [illegible] to spend a few [illegible] despondent [illegible] of newspaper [illegible] published at [illegible] italized point to [illegible]

But duty called [illegible] words, and [illegible] up the road for [illegible] work

The good wife [illegible] ties and [illegible] had had [illegible] that caught her eye was the little [illegible] from the generous [illegible] golden valley of the Bitter Root mountains She read of the $5000 and [illegible] heart what a big [illegible] of earning it never for one moment [illegible] her head still [illegible] about it and as she turned it over and over in her mind, she had to [illegible] possibility of possessing [illegible] of wealth and [illegible] when she got it [illegible] of huge nuggets and monstrous chunks of gold and of the [illegible] beautiful [illegible] earth with a bright [illegible] angel had just [illegible] basketful of hard [illegible] her lap when [illegible] find it all a [illegible] was [illegible] more excited [illegible] made up her [illegible] go she did [illegible] proaching [illegible] the mountains [illegible] dead of winter [illegible] of her husband [illegible] thought the matter over carefully and finally ended her meditations by resolving to dare every danger and risk [illegible] displeasure by visiting the dreadful [illegible] Taking what little money [illegible] boarded [illegible] set down at [illegible] ing There a new difficulty arose There was no way of getting across the mountains to Eagle City except by means of mules or the buckboard mail It was a [illegible] drive [illegible] would [illegible] but [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] shawls [illegible] side the driver and [illegible] the mountain [illegible] day [illegible] drifts [illegible] summit [illegible] hour to water [illegible] his half [illegible] helped her into the [illegible] courtesy The Half Way House [illegible] nice warm supper [illegible] ers The little [illegible] here a couple of hours resting [illegible] ing, but the United States mail [illegible] delay and so they must go on It [illegible] have been wise, so the driver said to [illegible] over for the next mail but as the [illegible] would not pass for two days at least [illegible] perhaps longer she decided to go at once The buckboard started down the mountain side and rattled along at a lively rate over the frosted snow By nightfall the snow began to fall thick and fast, and in a short time the road was covered out of sight The trail could only be followed by the aid of blazed trees. and of course, traveling became slow and tedious of necessity.

How cold was the night and how dark it seemed! Once the driver leaned over to ask his companion some question, receiving no answer he looked closer and was astonished and alarmed to find that she had fainted Stopping the team with a jerk, he whipped a flask from his pocket and held it to the unconscious lips She had merely fainted from exhaustion and not from cold The brandy revived her drooping faculties and in a few minutes the journey was resumed

Late into the night the mules plodded wearily along and once more the tender hearted driver found his companion had become unconscious. This time it was from cold and exposure instead of mere exhaustion He tried the brandy remedy again but it gave only temporary relief No sooner would the poor creature revive than she would go off again The driver now became truly alarmed for the life of his passenger Only four more miles remained to be passed over and then Eagle City would be reached But she might die in the mean time and what was he to do? There was no help for it, and he proposed to do the best he could Gently laying her back on the mail sacks, he covered her with all the buffalo robes he had, and then whipped his fagged animals into a smart gallop down the black and gloomy gulch On sped the flying team in a race for life or death and life won Pretty soon the lights of Eagle City began to loom up through the night and a moment later the broken down animals dragged their unconscious burden into the center of the town

"Hello!" exclaimed Hank Potter in amazement what have we here? A woman by all that's holy Here you Steve and Campbell and half a dozen others come lend a hand Move this poor critter into the shack

She was lifted tenderly by rough but gentle hands and laid carefully upon a rude couch in a log hut near by

"Any doctor in the crowd?" called out Potter coming to the door of the cabin and looking over the curious assemblage

"Here, here, and here" answered [illegible] two embryo physicians, each of whom had [illegible] if not practice Potter who seemed to be a self instituted master of ceremonies singled out an elderly looking man who evidently had the advantage of age and experience over the others, and together the two men entered the cabin where the woman lay still unconscious In about fifteen minutes the rough miner appeared at the door and informed the crowd that the passenger was all right but that the doctor was going to stay with her for a little while That night the baby came Potter announced the arrival of the little helpless stranger to the rest and said that both mother and child were doing well

But it's my opinion, boys that it's the same old story and I for one would like to wallop the scoundrel who would take advantage of a purty little critter like that an innocent gal in the shack "

In the meantime the happy mother had exhibited, with becoming pride, to the physician who attended her, the wedding ring on her finger; and the doctor by a few questions discreetly put, soon made himself master of the story Hank Potter was given the substance in detail, and lost no time in communicating it to the crowd outside While they looked on in amazement, he bounded into their midst and shouted at the top of his lungs

"Whoop hooray! it's all right, boys the kid's genuin' and no mistake Let's give three cheers for the first baby born in the gulch and then we'll go in the health offus over thar and set 'em up for luck "

The strange conglomeration of humanity broke into a shout that filled the valley from pit to dome a shout that was echoed back in an hundred reverberations from the distant peaks

The great hearted animals actually fashioned a rude cradle from willow boughs which they sent as a present to the enterprising youngster who had consented to be born among them

That day and the following night the gulch went on a spree As soon as the mother was able she made it known that it was her desire for all who wished to come and see her baby boy How the rough, big bearded men crowded around that little child one asking if he might kiss it, another if he might lift it and the third the privilege of seeing it fed from a bottle Gold in handfuls was thrown by the rough miners into the little one's cradle until it was almost smothered under the yellow nuggets One poor fellow wanted to hear it cry and when the kid piped up the miner wept [illegible] like that for years Then at [illegible] Hank Potter Bart Stevens and two [illegible] others were appointed a committee to deliver the $5000 to the mother and child

"This here is all yourn " exclaimed the [illegible] named, as he [illegible] pawed while [illegible] the lady and it's fer the [illegible] in the box over yonder who [illegible] to the camp now you know [illegible] with an old miner's blessing [illegible] it fur the boy till he gits old enough to [illegible] his claim hisself while he's [illegible] around we'll do the right thing [illegible] work it fur him" saying which the rough uncouth creature, with a suspicion of [illegible] in his eye laid the bulky [illegible] containing the dust and nuggets at the feet of the blushing, [illegible] mother, and with the others backed awkwardly out of the room The industrious [illegible] alarmed and frightened at the mysterious disappearance of his good wife searched for her everywhere in vain and finally after widespread inquiry learned of her whereabouts He made all possible speed to Eagle City and when he arrived there it was a happy reunion for the little family What cared he for money or wealth? The mother presented him with a bouncing big boy who was worth more to the fond father than all the gold on earth Nevertheless his youthful son was evidently born with a golden spoon in his mouth as the cradle contained a veritable fortune for the poor hard worked railroad hand The father at once took to mining on his own account and soon afterwards struck it rich near the head of Pritchard Gulch The claim of the youngster was [illegible] "The Lucky Boy" by his [illegible] parents and at last account was panning out wonderfully rich —[Copyrighted All rights reserved

THE LAW SCHOOL.

Introductory Exercises to the Third Year of the Institution.

Remarks by Judge Matthew P Deady—Full Text of Lecture by Prof Thornton on "Ethics of the Law"

Last night the law school of the University of Oregon reopened in the Willamette block There were present a large number of students and several members of the Portland bar Judge Matthew P Deady presided. He spoke as follows

Gentlemen and Members of the Law Class of the University of Oregon for the year 1886. —I have been asked by the professor and principal of this law school, inasmuch as I am the President of the Board of Regents to occupy the chair to-night, and formally to announce that the third year of this school has now begun I have been asked also to make some suggestions or impromptu remarks with reference to the topic of the forthcoming address. The administration of justice reflects the best moral sense of the community and the system thus established is an embodiment of the highest phase of civilization which mankind has attained There may be a time when the administration of justice can be dispensed with when no one will do wrong, when every one will be satisfied with his own, and seek to obtain no more But, unfortunately, that time has not yet come Men are so imperfectly organized, so inconveniently situated in this world that they often do wrong, either by intention or by mistake In early ages might and right were practically synonymous but jurisprudence has happily superseded violence, and wrongs are remedied and rights maintained in a peaceable method and this consummation is reached as I have said by the operation of rules which are founded in the moral sense of the community

The law is an ethical science. It deals with rights and wrongs so that the very kernel of it consists in the ethical idea of distinguishing the right from the wrong The law, which is a rule and not a caprice, will occasionally diverge or separate from the moral sense of the community but the two will not long remain separated In the vicissitudes of public opinion, ideas of right and wrong change the moral sense is biased in this or that direction, the old rules and formulae which once correctly represented that moral sense, no longer do so, and it is the office of those who administer justice to bring the one and the other together again. Those who are engaged in that work whose duty it is to apply these ethical rules, ought unquestionably to be governed in their own conduct by the highest ideas of ethics and morality. I understand that the address, which will now be delivered, deals with this subject. I take pleasure, therefore, in introducing to you Prof Richard H Thornton, who will read the address.

Prof Thornton said

Gentlemen of the Law School of the University of Oregon —It affords me much pleasure to assist in opening this school of learning for its third session, and to observe, from the increased attendance, the estimation in which it is held by the people of this state At another time I will speak to you about the work which lies before you, and the necessity of industry and accuracy in performing it. Instead of proceeding at once to the regular lecture, I desire now to offer, as on previous occasions, some remarks of a more general kind. And I have chosen the topic of legal ethics. Some years ago that most eminent lawyer and upright man, the late Judge Sharswood, of Pennsylvania, published a small treatise on this subject, in which he discussed certain questions of right and wrong in professional conduct. A short time before his death I wrote to him, and took the liberty of suggesting that he should enlarge the volume, or at least give the world some further essays on such matters as the taking of contingent fees, the soliciting of employment, and the practice of what may be called forensic dissimulation He replied that he had already condemned contingent fees, and pointed out their evil consequences that in his opinion the soliciting of employment was clearly unprofessional, and that he had treated the third problem in his note on Courvoisier's case He added that his little book was not intended as a systematic treatise The points now introduced will furnish material for this address.

In a thoroughly well ordered commonwealth the pulpit, one may suppose, would be the great teacher of ethics not only to lawyers, but to other classes of men who are at least equally in need of such instruction Indeed there have been times in the world's history when this duty was vigorously executed by those on whom it was primarily incumbent when the tricks of commerce, and the law's delay, and the iniquities of statecraft, severally met with a just reprimand and when some intelligent guidance was forthcoming, as to the more ordinary doubtful cases of conscience But the preacher in our generation appears to have abdicated his function as a teacher of morals, and to have retired into the arid and less turbulent region of metaphysical abstractions And here, as one occasionally finds people who amuse themselves with disputing what a self-evident [illegible] two instances and proofs [illegible] it [illegible] may be given During the last fifty years the question has been anxiously debated whether in good morals a lawyer could undertake a cause on a contingent fee, and [illegible] All this question, to which I will presently return, is so far from easy and rapid solution, that the opinion concerning it prevails to [illegible] England, and the contrary opinion in the United States Now it is proverbially dangerous to assert a universal negative yet it is not risking much to say that there exists no record during these fifty years, of any rational handling, in a sermon, of this interesting and important inquiry And now for the other instance A great change has come over the public mind with regard to the morality of usury, by which term, according to its old sense, I mean the taking of interest for the use of money In the early and middle ages, the taking of any interest, however small, was thought to be sinful and the English and Continental clergy, even as late as Bishop Jewell, and later, denounced the custom openly You all know that modern economists consider payment for the use of money just as legitimate as payment for the use of land, or profit on the sale of merchandise although some writers, among whom Mr Ruskin is prominent, are now venturing to reassert the obsolete doctrine The preacher, however, has long ceased to concern himself with the mutual duties of the borrower and the lender Questions like these have been constantly agitated, some men have been saying that a particular course of action is right others have been contending that it is wrong and the voice of the prophet has been suspended in a silent equilibrium, like the coffin of Mahomet, which is said to hang without visible support between heaven and earth

The general subject of ethics, or casuistry, though it has fallen into accidental disrepute, is one which will always possess a strong attraction for philosophers It is a science of close distinctions It requires clearness of insight and honesty of purpose It has to do with practical issues, and is therefore of permanent utility For, as Jeremy Taylor says, "Virtues and vices have not, in all their instances, a great landmark set between them, like war-like nations separate by prodigious walls, vast seas and portentous hills but they are oftentimes like the bounds of a parish, men are fain to cut a cross upon the turf, and make little marks and annual perambulations for memorials so it is in lawful and unlawful, by a little mistake a man may be greatly ruined "

The traditions of the English bar require from its members a remarkable strictness of conduct, and that, in a barrister, may provoke comment, which in another man would scarcely be noticed Allusion has been made to the case of Courvoisier The matter itself was deplorably commonplace but a singular incident has made the trial memorable Courvoisier was a Swiss valet, who was tried for the murder of his master, Lord William Russell The murder and the trial both occurred in the year 1840 in the city of London Mr Charles Phillips, a gentleman of long and distinguished standing in his profession, was of counsel with the prisoner, whose case he undertook just as any lawyer might undertake the case of any accused person of whose previous doings he knew nothing But when the trial was half over Courvoisier was confronted with a witness whom he had not expected He displayed signs of agitation Calling his counsel to his side he privately confessed his guilt. "Of course, then " said Mr. Phillips, when the first shock of the discovery was over, "you are going to plead guilty?" "No, sir," replied the wretched man, "I expect you to defend me to the utmost " whereupon Mr. Phillips and Mr Clarkson, who was with him, returned to their seats Mr Phillips at once thought of abandoning the case but it so happened that Baron Parke, though not engaged in trying it, was seated beside the chief justice, and Mr Clarkson suggested that his advice be taken during the recess of the court. This was done, and the learned baron, on hearing that the prisoner still wished to be defended, was of opinion that Mr Phillips was bound to go on with the defense, and to use all fair arguments arising on the evidence Mr. Phillips and his colleague accordingly went on, and the former gentleman, in due course, addressed the jury on behalf of the accused. His speech was able and eloquent. Among other things, he said that here and there probabilities started up, which might make the jury suspect the existence of an unjust and depraved conspiracy against the prisoner In urging upon the jury the necessity of caution, he remarked that the omniscient God alone knew who perpetrated the crime And in conclusion, he warned them that if they pronounced the word guilty lightly, the memory of it would never die within them Throughout his address, he carefully abstained from pronouncing any personal opinion Courvoisier was convicted and sentenced, and the sentence was executed and the fact of his extraordinary confession to his counsel was published in the newspapers, Then Mr. Phillips became the subject of an attack, in all probability the most cruel and persistent that any lawyer has ever had to encounter, chiefly on the part of a London newspaper, once widely known, named the Examiner In the first place, it was generally insinuated that he acted a dishonest part in defending a man whom he positively knew to be guilty In the second place, he was charged with profanity and falsehood in respect of his allusion to the omniscient God In the third, it was said that in suggesting of the existence of a conspiracy to ruin his client, he sought to throw the blame on innocent persons, namely, certain other servants who were in the house when the murder was committed. It was also said that Mr. Phillips had asserted his personal belief in his client's innocence but this statement was undoubtedly false And thereupon there arose a contention which lasted for at least ten years Now it seems to me that Mr Phillips did as nearly right, upon the whole case, as fallible humanity permitted Lord Chief Justice Tindal said indeed in a subsequent conversation with two eminent barristers, that he had, under accumulations of difficulty, properly discharged a most painful duty Let us even suppose that Courvoisier had acknowledged his guilt to him before the trial began. Might he not, with a clear conscience, have said to him, I will do my best, guilty as you are, to see that you are not convicted by any unlawful means, such as the introduction of incompetent evidence and I will claim for you that to which every accused person, who chooses to plead not guilty, is entitled, namely, the benefit of a reasonable doubt " The position of a counsellor, in a case like that, would be embarrassing, and a man of nice sensibility might decline to occupy it But surely one may go thus far, without overstepping that invisible boundary of which Jeremy Taylor speaks So long as there are rules of evidence, so long as there exists a doctrine regulating the burden of proof, a prisoner must be entitled to the assistance of those who are better acquainted with these matters than himself, and if he is entitled to employ counsel, counsel must be entitled to accept the employment But this was not Mr Phillips's position Had he abandoned the case at so critical a period, he would virtually have placed himself in the jury box with a vote against his client. Upon this point, the wisdom of Baron Parke's opinion cannot be disputed Further, the suggestion of a conspiracy against the accused was one which arose upon the evidence, for some of the evidence, as it happened, pointed to an attempt to manufacture proof against Courvoisier on the part of an unscrupulous policeman, and inasmuch as the jury are bound to pass upon the evidence, and nothing else, this comment was perfectly fair. In the third place, the allusion to the omniscient God may in strictness rather be excused than defended It probably occurred to Mr Phillips, in the full tide of his argument, that God alone had infallible knowledge of this or of any circumstance And that criticism would be needlessly severe, which should seek to weigh every expression of rhetoric in the scales of literal precision. As to the other point, if Mr Phillips had asserted his personal belief in his client's innocence, after all that had occurred, he would have acted disgracefully But, independent of this, the private belief of the advocate is a matter which he has no business to obtrude upon the jury, and assertions of this kind are at the best no more than claptrap.

The history of this remarkable case, which you will do well to study more particularly, illustrates the fierceness of the light which beats upon the conduct of an English barrister. Somehow or other, there exists everywhere in the lay mind a disposition to cast undeserved blame on members of the profession I do not mean on the Dodsons and Foggs and Sampson Brasses, who deserve all the odium they have earned. but on lawyers as such This topic is a wide one, and I will merely read to you in connection with it, a short dialogue between Samuel Johnson and James Boswell, held in the year 1768, which clears up one phase of popular misconception. "I asked him whether, as a moralist, he did not think that the practice of the law in some degree hurt the nice feeling of honesty Johnson Why no, sir, if you act properly You are not to deceive your clients with false representations of your opinion you are not to tell lies to a judge Boswell But what do you think of supporting a cause which you know to be bad? Johnson Sir, you do not know it to be good or bad till the judge determines it I have said that you are to state facts fairly so that your thinking, or what you call knowing a cause to be bad, must be from reasoning, must be from your supposing your arguments to be weak and inconclusive But, sir, that is not enough An argument, which does not convince yourself, may convince the judge to whom you urge it and if it does convince him, why then sir, you are wrong, and he is right It is his business to judge and you are not to be confident in your opinion that a cause is bad but to say all you can for your client, and then hear the judge's opinion. Boswell But, sir, does not affecting a warmth when you have no warmth and appearing to be clearly of one opinion when you are in reality of another opinion does not such dissimulation impair one's honesty Is there not some danger that a lawyer may put on the same mask in common life, in the intercourse with his friends? Johnson Why no, sir Everybody knows you are paid for affecting warmth for your client and it is, therefore, properly no dissimulation the moment you come from the bar you resume your usual behavior Sir a man will no more carry the artifice of the bar into the common intercourse of society than a man who is paid for tumbling upon his hands will continue to tumble on his hands when he should walk on his feet " In saying that a lawyer does not know whether a cause is good or bad until the judge determines it, Dr. Johnson is obvious[ly] not alluding to ordinary cases, which depend on the application of plain rules, but to questions of doubt and intricacy

Leaving this branch of the subject, let us now consider in its moral aspect the question of contingent fees You will find, as you read, that the common law of England discouraged all transactions whereby one man attempted to buy another man's right in litigation, or any share of it. The reason of this was that powerful men in times greatly differing from our own, were apt to purchase litigious claims, and force judgment upon them by threats and violence For a similar reason, no stranger was allowed to assist a man in his suit. If he did this, he was said to be guilty of maintenance But if in addition, he bargained for a part of the thing in litigation, as the price of his assistance, he was guilty of the more serious offense of champerty and champerty was considered peculiarly vicious when the bargain affected real estate Now, of course, the service rendered to a party by his lawyer, professionally, was never regarded as maintenance but still, if the lawyer stipulated for a share of the thing in dispute as his professional fee, that contract was held to be champertous and bad And so it has come to pass that the unbroken tradition of the English bar is adverse to the taking of cases on speculation The history of this matter in the United States is different. No armed baron, at the head of a train of vassals, ever appeared within bowshot of an American courthouse Moreover, while land has always been plentiful, money has often been scarce and so real estate lost much of its old sanctity Ancient precedent, however continued to hold in conflict with modern convenience, and for many years the question hung doubtfully In the year 1843, Mr Justice Rogers, of Pennsylvania, spoke as follows "The practice which has generally obtained in this state, to allow a contingent compensation for legal services, has been a subject of regret nor am I aware of any direct decision by which the practice has received judicial sanction in our courts " The bench, at and after this time, regarded it with suspicion still it was evidently gaining ground and we may safely say that a custom, which had widely obtained in 1843, and which has never been abandoned, has now a prescription of sixty or seventy years. Ten years later (15 How 415) the supreme court of the United States sustained a decree which allowed a contingent fee of 5 per cent. on the sum of $75,000 And the custom has strengthened itself by degrees, until, thirty years after that, and within this very decade, the same court (110 U S 40) under special circumstances, allowed a contingent fee of 50 per cent. on the amount recovered Judge Sharswood, however, to the day of his death, was tenacious of the older opinion and the English example Such a contract, says he, reduces the counsel to the level of a party arguing his own cause. It makes him a partner with his client. The client is encouraged by it to try the chance of any doubtful claim and the lawyer is tempted to drive unconscionable bargains

It must be admitted that these objections have weight. On the other hand, a client may be unable to pay any fee unless he wins his suit, and the prosecution of the many just claims would be practically barred, if the ancient rule were rigidly maintained The case is less clear, when the client, though financially able, is unwilling to lose money in case of defeat, but willing to pay handsomely in case of success. But even in such a case as this, there seems no sufficient reason for scruples of conscience. The wise man reminds us that there is an element of destruction in being righteous overmuch; and a custom which is now general, and which has received the repeated sanction of the highest tribunal in the land, may well be regarded as sound In one point, the modern doctrine still waits completion If it be right and lawful to stipulate for one-third of such sum as may be recovered on a mercantile contract, it cannot but be equally right in morals to stipulate for one third of a tract of land, the title of which is in dispute On this Pacific coast, at any rate, the rule against maintenance and champerty is lingering in a state of decrepitude, and some of you may perhaps assist in giving it decent burial. In all cases, as it seems to me, the proposition of contingent compensation ought to come from the client, and not from the lawyer

Large concessions must, undoubtedly, be made to the spirit of the age But these concessions must have their limit, or the integrity of professional life will be dissolved That will be an evil day in which lawyers forget, as some are now in danger of forgetting, that the practice of the law is not merely a business Mercantile pursuits are honorable and useful and necessary in every commonwealth, but those pursuits which aim in the first instance at the acquisition of knowledge are generally different from them Consequently, an act, which, in the one pursuit, is praiseworthy, may be reprehensible in the other Such an act is the soliciting of employment or custom The merchant may introduce himself to any person who has business in his department, with the direct purpose of asking for a share of it and no one will blame him but the lawyer who does this has put on a badge of degradation Dr Johnson said that if he had been a lawyer he would have shunned this practice, not so much because he thought it wrong, as because he disdained it There is, indeed, no practice so likely to obliterate the moral sense, and to destroy selfrespect And since it is the interest of the whole community to maintain the purity of the bar, a business man, who is approached by a lawyer for the purpose of obtaining a particular employment, ought, for that reason, if for no other, to turn a cold shoulder upon him A horde of pettifogging, barratrous, custom seeking lawyers, says Judge Sharswood, is one of the greatest curses with which any state or community can be visited

Topics like these are suggestive of extended comment, but I prefer to turn to a page of one of the old reports In the year 1603 certain barristers were made sergeants-at law They were addressed, according to custom, by the lord chief justice of England The man who then occupied that high position had a singular history In his youth he followed, a career of dissipation, and even risked his neck by committing robberies on the queen's highway Then, like Prince Hal, he reformed, and came to administer that law which he had once defied, and one of his last judicial acts, thirteen years after the date now referred to, was the sentencing of Guy Fawkes and his companions in the gunpowder plot, "And all the Justices were assembled in the Middle Temple Hall, the second day of May, where the two Ch of Justices and Chief Baron sat upon the Upper Bench of the same hall, in their Scarlet Robes, with the r Collers of SS, and every one of the other Justices and Barons in their Ancienty, one on the one side, and the other on the other side in their Scarlet Robes also, and then came the new Sergeants in their Black Gowns before the Justices there, the two eldest being put in the midst before the Chief Justice of England, and so every one of them, one on the one side, and the other on the other side, according to their Ancienty, and every one of the said Sergeants having one of his Servants behind him at his back, with his Master's Scarlet Hood and Coif upon his arms and thereupon the said Chief Justice made his speech in [illegible] manner

"If men w[illegible] enter into a due consideration upon what grounds the Laws of this Realm have their Original Foundation, and what good effects are wrought through the due Execution of the same, they might say, and that justly, that the Profession thereof is both an honest and an honorable Profession. The Laws are derived partly from the Law of God, and partly from the Law of Nature From the Law of God, it that it ordaineth means how the People may be truly instructed in the Knowledge and Fear of God, how they should demean themselves towards their Sovereign and Prince, how they ought to live one with the other, and how to be defended from Oppressions and Injuries From the Law of Nature, in that it provideth how each man may live by his own Labours, or otherwise, according to his Profession or Calling that he may secure his Posterity of that which he hath gathered together by his industry, and that Man with Man may live together in such secure and comfortable Society as appertaineth And what be the effects which grow by the due Execution of the Laws They are these By it God is known, the Sovereign Prince obeyed the People are kept to live in Peace, and that is yielded to each which is his due And can there be any better things than these upon the face of the Earth? No, there cannot. The Law, therefore, being taken from so good a Ground, and working such notable and honorable Effects, who can justly say otherwise, but that the Profession of such a Law is an honourable Profession? It is evident that they are either grossly ignorant, or otherwise very malignant and contemptuous Persons that may not be induced to be reformed, that do in any wise hold this Profession to be either base or contemptible [illegible] Yet happily there may be some (there is as lip in by extra[illegible] means) that sometimes [illegible] give Scandal to the Profession as where such are called to the degrees of Learning as are either ignorant or infamous Persons, whereby they either cannot advise as they should or by giving themselves over to Sleights and to Shifts, they do not advise as they ought A matter abhorred of all good and honest Men But the same, being duly weighed, tendeth to the Touch of the Person and not of the Profession * * * And now, yourselves that are here present, the most thankfulness you can show to your country, which hath so highly advanced you, is to counsel your Clients according to your Skill, honestly and truly, whereby they may not be encouraged to spend their Time and their Substance in vain, frivolous and unjust Suits to be faithful and secret to your Clients, not disclosing their Counsels to their prejudice that you expedite your Client's Cause so far forth with conveniency, and your Client's safety that both in your Practice and otherwise your Speech and Behaviour towards all Men be modest and discreet, yea, such as appertaineth to Men of your Gravities and Callings that without respect of Persons ye be bold to maintain your Client's honest Cause, so far forth as may stand with Knowledge and wisdom and that in all things you respect more your Honesties than your Profits."

After these and other wise words had been spoken the new sergeants-at-law were invested with their robes of office, and walked to Westminster and were presented there and gave rings, according to custom, in memory of the event "And all this done they return to their chambers, and there put on their Black Gowns and red Hoods, and come into the Hall, each standing at his Table according to his Ancienty bareheaded with his Coif on, and after setteth himself upon the Bench, having a whole Mess of Meat, with two Courses of many Dishes served unto him and in the Afternoon they put on their Purple Gowns and they go in order to Paul's, where it hath been accustomed that they heard Service and had a Sermon " Such was the order of things, such the theory of the function of the law, such the conception of the good lawyer's character, 300 years ago Has our advance since then, been altogether an improvement?

One more picture from Westminster hall, and I have done In the year 1770 John Wilkes was prosecuted by information in the King's Bench for publishing certain libels in the famous No [45] of the North Briton and in his "Essay on Woman" Party spirit ran high "Junius" was dipping his pen in venom and producing those diatribes which his literary ability has rendered immortal "Our language," said he, a few months later, in an open letter to the chief justice of the King's Bench "has no term of reproach, the mind has no idea of detestation, which has not [illegible] been happily applied to you, and exhausted * * * Believe me, my good lord, you are not admired in the same degree in which you are detested It is only the partiality of your friends that balances the defects of your heart with the superiority of your understanding No learned man, even among your own tribe, thinks you qualified to preside in a court of common law Yet it is confessed that under Justinian you might have made an incomparable prætor It is remarkable enough, but I hope not ominous that the laws you understand best, and the judges you affect to admire most, flourished in the decline of a great empire and are supposed to have contributed to its fall " Such insults as these were publicly offered to that great jurist whom Mr Justice Buller calls the founder of the commercial law of England, and of whom Lord Eldon said that he would be remembered as long as the law of England or of Scotland should exist. Nor was he only assailed with abuse, but threatened with violence, —an outrage which was afterwards accomplished in the burning of his house during the Gordon riots In the midst of these attacks he stood like the man whom the Latin poet describes, just, tenacious of his purpose, and indifferent to every expression of popular tumult. Listen to his language in rendering judgment on Wilkes's trial, and you will discern the moral grandeur of the spirit which prompted it "I pass over many anonymous letters I have received Those in print are public, and some of them have been brought judicially before the court. Whoever the writers are, they take the wrong way, I will do my duty unawed. What am I to fear? That mendax infamia from the press, which daily coins false facts and false motives? The lies of calumny carry no terror to me. I trust that my temper of mind and the color and conduct of my life have given me a suit of armor against these arrows. If, during this King's reign, I have ever supported his government, and assisted his measures, I have done it without any other reward than the consciousness of doing what I thought right. If I have ever opposed, I have done it upon the points themselves, without mixing in party or faction, and without any collateral views. I honor the King, and respect the people, but many things acquired by the favor of either are, in my account, not worth ambition. I wish popularity but it is that popularity which follows, not that which is run after. It is that popularity which, sooner or later, never fails to do justice to the pursuit of noble ends by noble means I will not do that which my conscience tells me is wrong, upon this occasion, to gain the huzzas of thousands, or the daily praise of all the papers which come from the press, I will not avoid doing what I think is right, though it should draw on me the whole artillery of libels, all that falsehood and malice can invent, or the credulity of a deluded populace can swallow "

Particular rules of moral action are useful for special circumstances, but an educated conscience, informed by an exalted purpose, is the best ordinary guide If you, gentlemen, will contemplate this honorable calling, which you hope to adopt, with the serene intelligence of Queen Elizabeth's chief justice and if in the practice of it, when the time for that shall come, you will emulate the glowing integrity of Lord Mansfield, you will then seldom go astray in any point of professional ethics.

A TRIBUTE TO DR LINDSLEY

A day or two ago H W Corbett, A W Stow [illegible] and Thomas N Strong were appointed commissioners to notify the Presbytery of the resignation of Dr A L Lindsley, and of its acceptance by the First Presbyterian church. In presenting this resignation, and the resolutions of the church accepting it, which was done yesterday, the commissioners added the following remarks, after which the request of the doctor was granted by the Presbytery

Mr Moderator In presenting to the reverend body over which you preside the resolutions we have just read, requesting you to accede to Dr Lindsley's request and dissolve the pastoral relation now existing between him and our church, we feel compelled to more fully express the motives and feeling of our congregation and membership

Doctor Lindsley came to us on the 31st of July, 1868, over eighteen years ago At that time we were a young and struggling church with only eighty-seven members, burdened with a heavy debt, and strong only in faith and hope We who were connected with it at that time well remember the situation and the hopes and fears of our little church, as it sent its call to one so far away and so little known to it. We remember, too, the prayers that went up from the church that its choice might be blest to it and our young community

It is with a feeling of reverential thankfulness that we now recognize and express how fully the prayers of the church were answered and her hopes realized.

Under Dr Lindsley's prudent, wise and loving leadership that little church has grown steadily in spirit, in numbers and in resources until it stands to-day a recognized power for good not only in Portland, but in the world

Four years and a half ago it numbered 412 members This with the attendant congregation overcrowded the old church and the first migration took place, resulting in the formation of Calvary church, which now numbers 195 members After that, in rapid succession came the church in East Portland, now numbering 94 members St. John's in North Portland, now numbering 55 members, the church in Albina, now numbering 49 members the church at Union Ridge, W T, now numbering 35 members, and the church at Fort Wrangel now numbering 54 members, each of which drew its original membership and resources from our church For a moment under this heavy drain the old church apparently fell back, and for a short time fear came upon its members that it had overleaped itself, but only for a moment. Rapidly and steadily the gaps filled up and to-day the church has 410 members, three more than it had when it commenced its work of colonizing and is stronger and in better condition financially, morally and spiritually than ever before

Every one of these younger churches show evidences of vigorous growth and will, we trust, soon rival in strength and usefulness the mother church

This alone is a grand work, and yet it is but a portion of what, under the providence of God, Dr Lindsley has been able to accomplish By [illegible] paying its own expenses and acquiring a large and valuable property the doctor's church, as we may well call it, has during his pastorate raised and expended for outside benevolent purposes the amount of $140,000 of which it is believed besides thousands more of which no record is possible Besides this the Ladies' Relief society, the Seamen's Home, the Young Men's Christian association and all kindred enterprises have been helped and fostered The Indian missions to the Alaskans, Umatillas, Puyallups, Spokanes, Nez Perces and other Indian tribes owe much to Dr Lindsley and the church over which he presided Nor were his activities confined to his own church, or its work during his pastorate he has organized twenty-one churches and dedicated twenty-two, and the church has time and again sent him out on missionary work all over the Northwest and the Pacific coast.

In all this the church, with a feeling of just pride in its minister and of grave responsibility for the management of the Talents committed to its charge, rejoices and takes comfort, and for it, under God, thanks the able, wise and loving pastor who has led it these many years.

Of the original 87 members but 27 now remain with us A few have gone to other churches, and the great church above has gathered in the rest Those, however who are alive and all the later members of the church will always bear in mind more and more tenderly as the years roll on the loving faithful, personal ministry of Dr Lindsley Ever faithful and diligent, there came from him no uncertain sound, and his people to whom he has ministered in storm and in sunshine, in sickness and in health for so long a time, had in him a loving wise and steadfast counsellor Under the circumstances, therefore, it was but natural that when the first intimations came that a wider field of usefulness was opening before him that would involve his separation from his church, that both he and it shrank back But more and more clearly it became apparent that it was his duty to accept this greater responsibility, and ours to refrain from withholding him from his Master's work

And so at his earnest request we now release him We feel that we have no right to hold him back, and with sorrowful hearts we bid him Godspeed in the wider field of usefulness opened before him.

We have much to be thankful for in the past, and this young community has been blessed, in that one so able, pure and influential for good has given us so many of his best days His influence, which shall bound it? Working as he has at the very fountain heads of the history of this portion of the world, he has helped in no slight measure to sweeten and purify its streams forever more Only at the grand muster of the resurrection day shall his work be made fully manifest and the jewels of his crown be numbered

Who shall replace him in this church congregation and community? We know not, but we can only trust and pray that the God who has so far supported and upheld his great church upon the earth will not leave this little flock untended

We therefore make known to you that moved by these considerations we consent that this presbytery should accede to the request of the Rev A L Lindsley, D D, and dissolve the pastoral relation that he now bears to our church, and one and all we prayerfully invoke upon his head the choicest blessings of the prayer hearing God that he has served so long and faithfully

She Wants the Purchase Money
New York Star

It is not unusual to hear women charged with selling themselves in the matrimonial market, but it is not often the proof is offered. New Brunswick, N J, presents an exception to this rule Mary Wilson has brought suit against the estate of her father in law for $30,000, which she claims was the price to be paid for her hand in marriage Mrs Wilson's maiden name was Mary Agnes Kane, of New York, and Jacob Wilson, Jr, was desperately in love with her When she refused his offer of marriage he tried to kill himself, and his father then offered Miss Kane $30,000 if she would marry the young man on his recovery She accepted the offer, was married March 23, 1885, but has never received the consideration promised. The father is now dead, and she brings suit against the estate. The case is now on trial.

USE RESULT OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

It has Caused Considerable Loss to Owners of New York Tenement Houses.

New York Dispatch September 16.

It is estimated that the Charleston earthquake did $100,000 worth of damage in New York city. Apartment houses here are commonly rented yearly from October 1. The present month is the busy one in that branch of the real estate business. The immense flat houses are of great size, the one built last before the passage of a state law restricting the altitude of residences being 200 feet from sidewalk to cornice. Heretofore the upper stories have been considered about as desirable as the others because of their better light, ventilation and outlook. Elevators annihilated stairway climbing. But the earthquake has scared tenants, and especially the women. They read the scientists' theories that the South Carolina destruction of buildings was caused by a slide of the ground seaward, and they know that the tremor was felt all along the Atlantic coast to this city. Therefore, why may not an earthquake jolt down houses here? If so, what would the dwellers at a hight of 100 or 200 feet come out? The real estate agents report that the feeling of uneasiness has seriously affected the rental of flats, many being left empty, with no probability of being taken except at reduced rates.

Prohibition and Local Option.

The Merchandise Market

General trade for the week has been quite active, ... distributive call for goods increasing with the ... in excess of those for two to four ... preceding. The rail lines enjoy a good business ... and the steamers bring in full cargoes. In ... two cargoes of English or Scotch coal arrived ... direct and a vessel with cement came into ... The last cargo was sold to arrive to the ... that now practically controls the ... trade of the coast. There is now no for... very near at hand, but present stocks ... enough for needs. Hard rains late last ... week made field work possible. Over ... of the Eastern section considerable rain will ... necessary to render the ground fit for the plow, ... excessively dry. Sufficient rain may be ... very soon, when field work over the ... Northwest will be general. In the lines ... below there are few changes to note. At ... of last week sugars were reduced. Salt ... a weak position on this coast but will ... lower here. Grain bags are inactive at ... Salmon in no business and small movement.

New York mail dates are to the 6th inst. The ... situation had then developed no new ... of significant importance, but the trade ... generally was said to show steady improvement. With but few exceptions values were ... with here and there a tendency to ... prices. The only exception to the general ... was the moderate demand existing for ... and the sluggish condition of the market ... leading articles. A review of the New York market for a few days prior to the 6th inst. ... There has been a weak feeling on the market during the past three days, and the business ... has resulted in a decline of ¼c in ... prices and 30@35 points in options. There ... very little disposition to buy either spot ... and under these circumstances the market has presented a tame aspect. The weakness ... developed, which has extended to Europe as ... Rio and Santos, is the result of the heavy ... at the two latter ports, but more especially at Santos, where the arrivals last week aggregated ... bags, the largest ever known. At Rio ... increase has not been so marked, and the ... arrivals have scarcely yet touched what may ... the high water mark, but in view of the ... of the past few days there has been very ... disposition to ventilate the short crop theory ... found favor with over sanguine bulls. ... these unfavorable features, however, ... there has been no over-anxiety or pressure ... for which there has been more inquiry, ... an increased business, and while the ... is fairly steady at 22@2 10 for the better grades, inferior could be purchased at lower figures. The spice market has undergone no important change since our last issue. The demand for invoices and round lots has been moderate, and no important sales have transpired. Pepper is firmly held, but supplies are moving off rather slowly, and dealers are unable to obtain an advance, notwithstanding the higher values current in London and Singapore, this market being for the present the cheapest. Refined petroleum has been in limited demand. There is a good demand for all domestic sorts of rice. Southern advices note that the crop is being marketed at sufficiently rapid rate to encourage planters to maintain present quotations. The chief activity seems to be in the finer sorts; all below such standard moving slowly. Foreign styles of choice grade continue to move with freedom, while the lower sorts show fair activity for export. The tea market has ruled firm but quiet, the demand from the country having been rather light, and afforded jobbers but little opportunity to replenish their stocks. The market for refined sugars has ruled dull and a shade easier for nearly all grades, the demand having continued light and barely sufficient to absorb production.

In its review of the San Francisco merchandise market for last week the Commercial News says: There is a steady trade reported in groceries and the condition of affairs is on the whole satisfactory. If the volume of business is not quite up to early expectations. The arrivals of Hawaiian rice this week foot up 5690 mats, much of which was disposed of from ship's side on sixty days' time. The price now is $4 25 per 100 pounds. Mixed rice is in light demand and prices are steady at $4 15@ 4 25 per two mats, as to quality. New No. 1 China sells at $5 20@5 25, a reduction from prices current last week. All grades of Liverpool salt are now in buyer's favor, prices having declined within the last fortnight. Both sifted Singapore and white pepper show an advance this week and allspice is also higher; other spices are in fair demand at steady rates. There are several changes reported in chemicals; English sal soda has arrived in quantity, 1500 barrels coming on one vessel, the bulk of which sold from ship's side at $1 per 100. The price ex-warehouse is now $1 05. Blue vitrol, chlorate of lime and English refined saltpetre are all in buyer's favor. The second of the series of tea sales, held on Wednesday, was better attended than the first and better prices were realized although the teas did not bring their full value in any case. As the sales progress, dealers will undoubtedly be attracted and if they can rely on their own judgment in selecting goods, will be able to do much better than by purchasing direct from wholesalers. The trouble in many cases is the buyer knows little of the intrinsic worth of teas and when not guided by brands or the fluent tongue of the drummer is all at sea as to the true value of his purchase. There has been a good demand reported for sugar and during the month of September, 5,644,110 pounds were shipped overland. Yesterday, however, the California refinery reduced prices ⅛c all around, making the best figure for white 6c. In canned goods the market has been steady with a good demand. Salmon is very quiet.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Government bonds were dull and steady. The temper of stock speculation underwent a sudden change to-day, and instead of the hesitation and caution lately displayed there was a rush to bid for advances ranging from ½ to 2. Lake Shore, New York Central and Omaha showing the greatest advance. Trading in the morning hours was active, and prices advanced almost without reaction until noon, when Lake Shore, Pacific Mail, Canada Southern, St. Paul, Michigan Central and Nickel Plate had made conspicuous gains. A somewhat less active and feverish market succeeded until the last hour, when the general rise was resumed, with Manhattan as the chief feature. There was no stay to the rise until the close, which was active and strong at the best prices of the day. No single active stock shows a decline to-night, and gains range from ½ to 2½ on the general list, while Manhattan is up 1 per cent.

A Remarkable Tribute.

Sidney Ourchondro, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "I have used DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS many years with the most gratifying results. The relieving influence of HALL'S BALSAM is wonderful. The pain and rack of the body, incidental to a tight cough, soon disappear by the use of a spoonful according to directions. My wife frequently sends for HALL'S BALSAM instead of a physician and health is speedily restored by its use."

DR. HENLEY'S POPULAR REMEDY
Has the largest sale, and has relieved and cured more persons afflicted with nervous troubles than any known remedy. Sold by all druggists and country dealers. Wm. T. Atwood, Agt. 111 Front st., Portland.

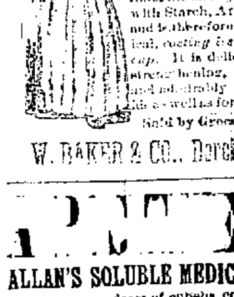

NATURE'S CURE FOR CONSTIPATION, Sick-Headache, AND DYSPEPSIA.
TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT Seltzer Aperient,

An elegant efficacious pleasant aperient in the form of a powder, producing when dissolved in water an Exhilirating Effervescing Draught, recommended by our best Physicians as a reliable and agreeable remedy. It cures Constipation, cures Indigestion, cures Dyspepsia, cures Piles, cures Heartburn, cures Sick Headache, cures Liver Complaint, cures Sick Stomach, And gently urges all the Excretory organs to a proper action. It should be found in every household and carried by every traveler. Sold by druggists everywhere.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?
That depends upon the Liver, for if the Liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirits are depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general despondency and the blues. The Liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like Nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons Liver Regulator a medical perfection.
"Have tested its virtues personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. Have tried many other remedies before Simmons Liver Regulator, and none gave more than temporary relief, but the Regulator not only relieved but cured me. H. H. JONES, Macon, Ga."

DR. JOHN BULL'S
SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP
FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.
The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of KENT'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient. Use no other.

DR. SPINNEY
THE CELEBRATED SPECIALIST,
Whose name is a household word throughout the United States and Canada, needs no introduction to the people of the Pacific coast, but would simply announce that he is now permanently located at Multnomah Block, opposite Postoffice, Portland, Or., where he continues to treat, with the same wonderful success as of old,
ALL CHRONIC, NERVOUS & PRIVATE DISEASES
Such as Lost Manhood, Nervous and Physical Debility, Exhausted Vitality, Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhoea, Prostatorrhoea, Impotency, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Syphilis, Diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Heart and Stomach; Premature Decline, Weakness in Women, and all Functional Derangements that result from youthful follies or excess in later years.
YOUNG MEN
Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretion will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. DR. SPINNEY will Guarantee to Forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.
Middle-aged Men
There are many at the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear or the color will be of a thin, whitish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. DR. SPINNEY will Guarantee a Perfect Cure in such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs. Address Box 623, Portland, Or. Hours 10 to 4. Later hours by appointment. Call or write for pamphlet and list of questions.

CURES Cancer, Scrofula, Eczema, Blood Poison, Malaria, Ulcers. And all Diseases Caused from Impure Blood
Cancer of the Tongue.
My wife, some three of four years ago, was troubled with an ulcer on the side of her tongue near the throat. The pain was incessant, causing loss of sleep and producing great nervous prostration. Accompanying this trouble was rheumatism. It had passed from the shoulders and centered in the wrist of one hand, she almost losing the use of it. Between the suffering of the two, life had grown burdensome. By the use of a half dozen small-sized bottles of Swift's Specific, she was entirely relieved and restored to health. This was three years ago, and there has been no return of the disease. H. L. MIDDLEBROOKS.

THE FAT STOCK SHOW.

Second Annual Exhibition at the Association's Pavilion.

Much Larger Display than Last Year—List of Exhibits Obtainable up to Last Night—Show Notes.

The second annual show of the North Pacific Domestic and Fat Stock association opened yesterday at their pavilion on Nineteenth street, near B. As usual in such matters, the entries were not complete at the opening, and cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, poultry, etc., were arriving all day long, and consequently a complete list of exhibits could not be obtained last evening. The amount of stock on the grounds is much larger than was present last year. In addition to that entered for competition there is a great deal merely on exhibition and for sale.

Following is a list of the entries for competition up to time of closing last evening:

DIVISION A—FAT CATTLE.

T. A. Fletcher, two entries, Hereford cows.
Ladd & Reed, Shorthorn cow.
T. H. Tongue, two Ayrshire cows.
R. S. Perkins, grade Durham steer. [This is the animal which carried off the first prize last year].

DIVISION B—DOMESTIC CATTLE.

A. G. Cunningham, Jersey herd, bull and four heifers.
T. A. Fletcher, two herds, Herefords.
J. T. Apperson, Jersey herd, bull and five cows.
R. N. L. Davis, Holstein-Frisian, bull, four cows and young stock.
Ladd & Reed, Shorthorns, bull and four cows.
T. H. Tongue, Ayrshires, bull and four cows.
G. W. Dimick, Aberdeen Angus, bull and four cows.
R. Scott, grade Shorthorn cow, for milk and butter.

OTHER EXHIBITS.

The following parties have stock on the grounds for exhibition, sale, or yet to be entered for premiums:
F. P. Crane, Kansas City, herd of Herefords, five bulls.
Holman Bros., herd of Holsteins.
John Chalmers, herd of Durham cattle.
Mr. Swigert, Durham bull.
A. H. Johnson, mammoth steer.
E. C. Bronaugh, Holstein bull.
D. C. Stewart, herd Holsteins.
R. Scott, grade Shorthorns.
Mr. McEldowney, herd Shorthorns.
Mrs. Sarah Stevens exhibits a Devon and Guernsey cow with twin calves.
Francis Chalmers, Jersey bull.

DIVISION C—SHEEP.

R. Perkins, pen of graded Cotswolds.

DIVISION D—HOGS.

Ladd & Reed, two-year-old grade barrow, two entries.
A. H. Johnson, two entries Yorkshire sows one year old; pig six months, barrow one year.
T. H. Tongue, Berkshires one year old, two entries; pig six months old.

HORSES.

Ladd & Reed exhibit fourteen head Clydesdales, all ages, and the Cleveland bay stallion Duke of Winlock.
Van B. DeLashmutt, stallion Hambletonian Mambrino.
A. H. Johnson, three-year-old Adirondack colt.
R. N. L. Davis, Mt. Vernon, W. T., Englishshire stallion LeRoy; Englishshire filly, two years old.
W. W. Spaulding, Adirondack colt, three years old.
Wm. Chalmers, Jr., grade Clydesdale stallions, mare, colt and filly.
Wm. Chalmers, Sr., two graded Clydesdale stallions.
There were several other fine horses, but the owners' names could not be ascertained.

DIVISION E—POULTRY.

D. J. Beemaugh, trio black-breasted, red game bantams.
A. F. Colom, trio silver-spangled Hamburgs.
G. F. Beck, Plymouth Rocks and Brown Leghorns.
Fred Strong, white-crested Black Polish.
C. H. Lewis, Jr., black-breasted, red game bantams.
J. A. Rowan, two buff Cochin Chinas, Brown Leghorns, Houdans, white-faced, Black Spanish.
Dr. E. A. Jones, Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Andalusians.
C. C. Strong, Wyandottes, game bantams, white turkeys.

NOTES.

There are as yet but few pigeons, rabbits, etc., on the grounds, but by to-night the show will be complete.

The only entries of dogs made are: Dr. E. A. Jones, pair Scotch collies; Wm. Starr, pair coach dogs and puppy.

The association offer medals as premiums for dogs and expect that there will be numbers of entries to-day. It is their desire to have a good "bench show."

There is a general desire that some one should start a lunch stand on the grounds. It is too far for many in attendance on the stock to come to town to get their meals.

The fair will continue until next Thursday, October 21. The following is the price of admission: Day ticket for male person, 15 years old or over, 50 cents; day ticket for woman or girl, 15 years old or over, 25 cents; season ticket for male person, 15 years old or over, $1 50; season ticket for female person, 15 years old or over, 75 cents; children under 15 years old, free.

There are necessarily a number of exhibitors omitted from the above list as they were coming in constantly up to the time of closing. As our reporter was coming away he met Alex. Chalmers of Washington county, driving a wagon in which were probably some hogs, while on top was a coop of young shepherd dogs, and tied behind a bull, while in the rear followed a fine band of Angora goats, and the procession wound up with a load of hay to feed the stock or as much of it as could eat hay.

THAT GROWL.

PORTLAND, Oct. 13, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Since the man who signs himself "Darland" says, in his card, that he was doing a thing in this office for which he felt it necessary to apologize to me, there is no occasion to make any excuse for my department towards him. That I was a little angry when I came in and found this man lounging in one of the office chairs, his hat pulled over his eyes and his feet and limbs sprawling out over other chairs, I admit. It was so clearly a style picked up in the barroom or saloon that I told him he had made a mistake; "this is not a barroom." I know now that I was not mistaken about the character of the man. I was only disappointed that he did not "strike" me for two bits for a meal. Like every other public office, the immigration board rooms are not exempt from a certain class of visitors, who imagine that, because it is a public office therefore it is a place where they may bring all kinds of ill-mannered actions and speech. Darland is the third visitor of this class in two years. C. B. CARLISLE, Secretary.

FROM THE EXHIBIT CAR.

The state board of immigration is in receipt of another letter from Manager Buick, of the exhibit car. The letter was written at Harrisburg, Pa., under date of October 7. He says that people continue to stream into the car by the thousands, and are all deeply interested in Oregon and its products. On the 5th the superintendent and other officials of the Pennsylvania railway, who had been visiting the car and expressed themselves as delighted with what Oregon could display, took Mr. Buick in a special ten miles into the country from Harrisburg, and with him visited the model farm of the state, belonging to Col. James Young, of Middletown. Mr. Buick says it was the most perfect farm in all its details he ever saw. The party was most hospitably received and entertained by Mr. Young. That gentleman came to the city with the party and visited the exhibit car, and very highly complimented the state board and the state of Oregon on the display and what it told of Oregon as an immigration field.

Mr. Buick writes that the Pennsylvania Railway company has been almost unstinted in the favors granted since the car struck the rails of that corporation. All along the route in that state, he has been the recipient of many favors, not met with elsewhere. The car has returned to St. Louis, Mo., and will be at St. Paul in the course of ten days.

MISS ALLISON ACQUITTED.

Sequel to the Murder of Campbell by Saunders at Albany Last November.

The trial of Mattie J. Allison, who was indicted by the grand jury of Linn county at the last term of the circuit court there, for the crime of murder of Charles H. Campbell at Albany, November 4, 1885, was begun in the circuit court at Salem on Tuesday. It will be remembered that the first grand jury that examined into the case refused to indict her, and that the grand jury at the following term, in June, took up the case and found an indictment against her. Her attorneys then moved for a change of venue to Marion, which motion was granted.

The case was called on Monday, and a motion to quash the indictment being denied, the case was set for trial at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The forenoon was taken up principally in the selection of a jury, and the trial de facto began at 1 o'clock P. M.

IN THE COURT ROOM.

Soon after 1 o'clock the court room began to fill with people, attracted there principally by curiosity, it is presumed, and yet, perhaps, many felt a real interest in the case. The defendant is a woman of medium size, very dark, hair black, and her face, while very pale, bore unmistakable signs of beauty. She is perhaps not a woman over whose face men would rave, but it has, even in its trouble, a certain charm about it. She wore a neat blue-black velvet hat, from beneath the rim of which her raven hair, neatly arranged, showed. Around her neck she wore a bronze-silk handkerchief, and her form was encased in a neat-fitting cloth dress. She appeared perfectly calm, and sat quietly and listened to the testimony against her, throughout the day.

HER COUNSEL.

Among her counsel are included some of the best legal lights in the state. Hon. Richard Williams of Portland, D. R. N. Blackburn, Hon. W. R. Bilyeu and Charles Wolverton, Esq., of Albany, and Judge John Burnett of Corvallis, are conducting the defense. George W. Belt, prosecuting attorney, assisted by Hon. M. A. Flinn, Hon. George E. Chamberlain and Capt. N. B. Humphrey, appear for the state.

Minnie Allison, elder sister of the accused girl, says the Statesman's report, sits near her, while behind the attorneys for the prosecution, with a look of sadness on her face, sat a young sister of the murdered man, with her aged father and mother by her side.

A VISIT TO SAUNDERS.

Capt. W. Wirt Saunders, the principal in the crime, will be on the stand to-day, as a witness for the defense. A reporter of the Statesman, who had known Saunders before this trouble came to him, visited him in his cell in the county jail, where he was placed by Sheriff Smith, of Albany, after being brought down on Monday. Saunders shook hands cordially with his visitor, and expressed his pleasure at receiving the call. He does not look so fleshy, nor quite so well, perhaps, as when the writer last met him, in January, 1885, but he said: "Since my trip to the seaside last summer, I have had very good health." Continuing, he said: "If any of my friends desire to know, you may say that I am in first-rate health and in good spirits, and that I am living in hopes of the future bringing me some 'surcease of sorrow,' and better fortunes." Saunders then chatted along pleasantly for some time about mutual friends, and the writer left him.

Nothing was said directly about the murder, or what he thought would come of it. He will be sentenced as soon as court meets at Albany, it is presumed.

THE EVIDENCE.

Sixteen witnesses were examined for the state, and the prosecution then rested. The defense then moved to admit the testimony taken before the grand jury in the examination at which Miss Allison was acquitted, as evidence; but the court overruled the motion. Miss Allison was then called and gave her testimony in a clear tone, her voice perfectly calm, yet she did not appear "brazen" or immodest. In recounting her sad tale, she brought tears to the hearts, if not to the eyes, of several in the court room.

The jury, which was drawn after going almost through the entire panel, consists of F. M. Hanley, J. S. Nye, Geo. Wolfer, Marion Eskew, W. H. H. Darby, J. D. Jordan, John A. McCann, A. L. Beckner, E. B. Vroom and Sidney Hildge. Following is a brief digest of the evidence as given on the part of the state:

For several months prior to the shooting Miss Allison and Charles Campbell had been keeping each other's company, but their courtship did not progress smoothly. According to the testimony of Mrs. Mansfield, Wm. Richards and others, Miss Allison grew tired of young Campbell's attentions, who, she claimed, had grown abusive and dissolute, and she even threatened to kill him if he did not cease following her about. On the 4th of November last letters were exchanged between the two, in which Miss Allison agreed to meet Campbell after nightfall and walk home with him. In the meanwhile she had written to Capt. Saunders, at Corvallis, to come down, as she was in trouble. (These letters were introduced in evidence.) The latter was near by when the meeting occurred, and on meeting them in an unfrequented street, in the evening, he shot Campbell down. The evidence showed that it was intensely dark, and, although several persons were not more than forty feet away, no one witnessed the shooting. Many damaging statements and threats had been made by both parties.

Before the conclusion of Miss Allison's testimony the court adjourned until 7 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

Court convened at 7 o'clock, when the examination of Mattie Allison was continued, which revealed nothing additional except that she and Campbell were in the habit of keeping street engagements and exchanging letters with fictitious signatures. She testified that there was no arrangement for Saunders to meet them on the street the night of the shooting, but was to meet them at her residence.

Five other witnesses were examined, who testified that Campbell had threatened to kill Miss Allison, if she did not marry him; that he was disguised when he went to meet her on the night of the murder, and that he had often boasted that he had "slept with her," and would ruin her that night if it cost him his neck.

MATTIE ALLISON ACQUITTED.

SALEM, Oct. 13.—The trial of Mattie Allison for the murder of Campbell at Albany, last fall, ended this afternoon with the acquittal of the defendant, the jury being out but twenty minutes. The first and second ballots stood eleven for acquittal and one against, the third ballot being unanimous in favor of acquittal. The verdict was received with general satisfaction on the part of the public, who have taken great interest in the proceedings, the court room being crowded during the progress of the trial. Miss Allison, her mother and sister, will return to Albany on the morning train to-morrow.

COLORED MEN ENDORSE POWDERLY.

At a meeting of colored citizens of this city, held last night for the purpose of forwarding a set of resolutions endorsing the action of Grand Master Workman Powderly, the following business was transacted.

Mr. George P. Riley was chosen president, Mr. Charles M. Brown secretary.

After stirring speeches by George P. Riley, Wm. Brown and Mr. Conner, of Tacoma, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That we unanimously extend to G. M. W. Powderly and his co-operators for the manly stand taken and practiced by them at their assembly, now in session at Richmond, Va.

Resolved, That they are entitled to the thanks and earnest consideration of our race throughout this Union in their stand for the mental elevation of our race.

Resolved, That while the good people of the Pacific coast and the northwest know no distinction or discrimination of race or color, we of the coast and northwest extend our unbounded sympathies to those of our race to whom Mr. Powderly is endeavoring to elevate, and whereas, we find that the eleven states containing over 2,000,000 voters, that we respectfully ask them to consider well the position taken by Mr. Powderly and his followers for their elevation.

Wm. Brown, John W. Connor, Charles M. Brown, William Barker, James Smith, Augustus Waterford, committee on preamble and resolutions.

BURIED IN A WELL.

The Almost Miraculous Escape from Death of Michael O'Halloran, of this City.

Walla Walla Union.

On Saturday morning, while Michael T. O'Halloran was curbing a well on M. F. Jones's place, on Chase avenue, the old curbing gave way and the loose, gravelly soil caved in upon him when working about thirteen feet below the surface. O'Halloran saw what was coming and attempted to climb the pipe, but was completely covered with gravel and boulders. His companion immediately descended into the well and with his hands worked away the dirt until O'Halloran's head and one hand protruded from the surface. This occurred about 7 o'clock and a short time afterward relief parties began the work of rescuing the unfortunate man. Owing to the treacherous nature of the soil curbing had to be built and a drift dug to the well, and he was not rescued from his perilous situation until 3:30 in the afternoon. O'Halloran is 62 years of age and has been in this city from Portland only a few weeks. He is a member of George Wright post, G. A. R., of Portland, and is a steady, hard-working man. On Sunday morning he was reported to be suffering but little from the effects of his premature burial.
